WHAT ABOUT this weather? We never had it so good. Oh well, don't complain. It is just spring and summer a little late, or maybe early??

DUPLICATE BRIDGE was the word Friday night at the home of Mildred Davidson. Those in on the play were June Belenbrock, Kay Robinson, Bebe Munkers, Elsie Cole, Lucia Cutsforth, Lois Hunt, Lorene Ledbetter, Eileen Fadberg, Edie Munkers, Eulenna Corley, Gladys Van Winkle and Mildred Gladys and June won high north-south and Lorene and Eileen had high score for east-west.

HANNAH ANDERSON entertained the Friday Afternoon Pinochle club with Beulah Mankin winning high score. Janina Johnson and Hannah ended up with the pinochle and Ann Fehmerling had low. Even winning low was an honor because the scores were very high. Others playing were Gladys Beckett, Carrie Beckett, Esther Bergstrom, and Margaret Dubuque.

THE RHEA Creek HEC met

Thursday at the home of Emma Cecil with a potluck dinner at noon. They planned the menus and assigned members for the dinners they are to serve this fall. A work day at the Wright Park was held Sunday with members working on the project.

MARIAN JONASSON held high score at the Bridge Biddies sessions Tuesday night with Mary McLeod doing the entertaining. Janina Johnson won the traveling prize for bidding and making fame the most times; and LaFyrne Pratt had third high. Also in on the fun were Mary Jean McCabe, Mary McClure, Jan Agee, Edda Mae Lovgren, and Mary. And speaking of Mary, any thing, did you girls miss the hostess? She forgot to put out the candies and nuts. Just thinking of your diets, really!

MARLYS PHEGLEY was surprised at Pinochle club Tuesday night with a birthday cake, serving following play at the home of Flo Connor. Jeanne Berry got into the win column by taking high score; Jackie Alstott was second; Linda Dunlap won the pinochle; and Joyce Phegley received the door prize. Others playing were Judy Buschke, Bonnie Buschke, Mary Lovgren, Lillian Key, Ruby Munkers, Shirley Marlatt, Marlys and Flo.

MADGE THOMSON entertained the What's Trump club Wednesday afternoon with Lota Tibbles having high for the afternoon. Helen Cohn was second; and Hapley (Anna) Graham was low. Also in on the action were Margaret Blake, Lucille Wilson, Virginia Rosewall, Helen Schaffitz, and Cora Mae Ferguson.

IN PINOCHLE tournament action, things are still low as far as scores go, but there are many ties for first and second places, so I will not list them until things clear up a little. So far no one has averaged 1,000 for one progression! New cards, maybe? High north-south in Wednesday's play were Janina Johnson and Myrna Sutherland; high east-west were Nora Turner and Martha Lane.

BILL COLLINS and LaVerne Van Marter went to Hermiston Sunday to enter the Duplicate Bridge Unit charity party. With seven tables in play they came home with high score for east-west. No others from here attended.

suspecting buck! Anyhow, another year, another time. But talk about luck, here is one: Jack Van Winkle said they had about given up the Sunday when they decided to go up Black Mountain. Jack got out to walk down a canyon, asking his wife, Ruth, to pick him up in about an hour.

So Ruth, their son, Jim, and her uncle, Jess Hannaman, drove along, stopping every little bit to look around. On one stop Ruth went to sleep for a bit, woke up and then went down the road. As she started she saw a 4-point buck off the road a ways. Out she jumps with the rifle and down goes the deer! Meanwhile, Jack was soaking wet standing in the rain waiting. He finally gave up and walked to the cabin to get the jeep. He drove back to see what had happened! Meat for the winter, sure enough! And Jack...? He is in the same boat I am.

Two Portlanders Visit Past Noble Grands

Mrs. Sara McNamer and Mrs. Lucy Rogers, both of Portland, former Heppner residents, were guests at the annual Past Noble Grands of Sans Souci Rebekah lodge dinner and meeting Thursday evening. A potluck dinner preceded the meeting with 18 members present.

Mrs. Jerald Rood is chairman; Mrs. Mabel Chaffee, vice chairman; and Mrs. John Bergstrom, secretary-treasurer. The members reviewed their secret pals and drew names for new secret pals for the ensuing year.

The altar was draped in memory of Pearl Devine at the Rebekah meeting Friday night. The first nominations were held for the new officers of the lodge. Mrs. Lincoln Nash and Mrs. Dean Connor were hostesses for the meeting.

Twelve members were present at the triple Links meeting Monday night at the home of Mrs. Prudy Casebeer. Following the regular business meeting the ladies had three tables of pinochle. Esther Bergstrom won high, Mrs. Mary Wright was low, and Mrs. Alice Luttrell won the door prize. Mrs. R. G. McMurtry will entertain the group at the next meeting November 18.

Links Club to Serve Dinner on Saturday

Final preparations are being made this week for the annual Turkey Dinner, to be served at the Lexington IOOF hall Saturday evening from 5:30 to 8:00 p.m. The traditional full course home-cooked dinner is sponsored each year by the Lexington Three Links club as a benefit project. Funds raised this year will go toward redecorating the dining rooms and in promoting plans for the city park.

Along with the dinner, hand-made bazaar items will be on sale by members of the club, and will feature a grab bag containing gift items. Cards will be in play after the dinner for those wishing to participate. Good response by attendance of people of the area will be greatly appreciated by the committee in charge.

Mrs. Maxine Ness returned to her home in Seattle, Wn., October 15 after visiting relatives here and attending the funeral of her grandmother, Mrs. Pearl Devine. Her daughter, Pamela, was also here for the services on Friday.

Many Attend Annual Smorgasbord Dinner

Some 400 persons enjoyed the Smorgasbord dinner served by the Catholic church at St. Patrick's parish hall Sunday afternoon.

General chairman of the event was Mrs. Bob Brindle working with all of the parishoners and the Ione and Lexington Altar Societies. Mrs. Wilbur Worden handled the ticket sales; Mrs. Juanita Duffy, publicity; Mrs. Paul Lorenz, serving girls; Mrs. Jerry Daggett, dessert table; Mrs. Ilene Wyman, Mrs. Charles Monagle, Mrs. Randy Lott, Mrs. W. H. Wolff, and Mrs. Brindle in charge of decorations. Members of the high school C. C. D. class worked in three shifts serving during the afternoon as did all food committees. Lexington group had charge of the salads and relishes; Ione, the meat dishes; and Heppner in on other kitchen help as was needed.

Decorations were used in the harvest theme with colors of orange, brown, yellow, and gold. The stage was centered with an arrangement of dahlias and gladioli, gourds and pumpkins on a pedestal. On each side was a basket of autumn leaves. Other fall arrangements were used about the room with fruits, nuts, and pumpkins on the serving table.

Proceeds from this annual dinner are used to replace and replenish items needed in the church or parish hall.
