Garden Club Views Wall Plaque Making

Mrs. William Rawlins was featured speaker at the October meeting of the Ione Garden club when it met at the home of the club president, Mrs. Oscar Lundell. Mrs. Rawlins presented a demonstration on the use of hardware cloth in the making of pictures or wall plaques.

After cutting the wire to the desired size, the speaker showed how it could be framed with half-round molding (about 1/2" size), which may be obtained at a lumber company.

The speaker showed how any artificial flowers, used corsages, dried materials, cattails, autumn leaves, ribbon bows or any other desired decorations are usable. The materials are arranged and attached to the prepared hardware cloth foundation by sewing or with corsage wire. The entire plaque may then be sprayed in gold, silver, copper or any desired color, with a permanent spray, she explained, making unusually beautiful gifts or for use through the holiday season.

Consultants Use Aerial Views, Maps In Irrigon Planning

IRRIGON—Joe Kozlovski and Margaret Fritsch, planning consultants for the City of Irrigon met with the Irrigon city council and planning commission at the school Monday evening to review current progress. The consultants showed several colored slides of aerial views of the City of Irrigon, showing road patterns, irrigation canals and developed lands, as well as the residential and commercial areas of Irrigon.

Following the slides, the consultants presented two maps, which will be used as the base for future planning. The one map is a generalized land usage map, with different colors on the map depicting the various land uses, such as residential, commercial, industrial, farm land, pasture and grazing. The other map is a larger scaled map of the city limits and the immediate surrounding area and while the one map will be used for generalization, the larger scaled map will be for more specific usage.

Mr. Kozlovski stated they planned to take more slides from an airplane, and they will be shown at a later meeting.

The next meeting between the consultants and the City Planning Commission and Council will be November 25, at the old school building at 7:30 p.m. The public is welcome to attend these meetings.
