

Fulleton's Brother Dies of Heart Attack

Mr. and Mrs. Roice Fulleton received word Saturday of the sudden death of Gordon Fulleton, 44, brother of Roice, at Quincy, Wn., Saturday morning. Cause of death was attributed to a heart attack, although the active rancher had been in good health prior to the sudden seizure.

The Fulletons left early Wednesday to attend the services at the Presbyterian church in Quincy at 2 p.m. Wednesday. He is survived by his wife and four sons, one of whom is married.

Albert Emry, 90, Dies in Portland

Albert Emry, 90, a former resident of Heppner, Hardman, Boardman and Monument, died in Emanuel hospital, Portland, Saturday morning, October 26, after a serious illness of two months.

Funeral services will be at St. Johns Funeral Home Friday at 2 p.m. and committal will be in the Hardman cemetery Saturday at 2 p.m. with the Rev. Charles Knox officiating at graveside services.

Mr. Emry, father of Mrs. William Jewell of Kinzua and Elzey Emry of Monument, had lived in Portland for six years. He resided in Heppner about 1918 to 1920 and once had a store in Hardman. Before going to Portland he had a ranch at Monument.

He was born in Iowa January 25, 1873, and was married about 1910 to Emma Merrill in Hardman. She died seven years ago.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Jewell of Kinzua and Mrs. Lawrence Johnson of Redmond; two sons, Hugh Emry of Seattle, Wn., and Elzey Emry of Monument; seven grandchildren; six great grandchildren; and a sister, Mrs. May Cowdry, Portland.

Mr. Emry had been making his home with his sister prior to going to the hospital with his final illness.

MRS. JERRY BROSNAN came to Morrow county as a school teacher in 1935 and married Brosnan the following year. Her husband has just been chosen for Morrow County Livestockman of the year honors. Photo of the couple was taken in the living room of their home on Little Butter Creek.

beginning of the breeding season.

A few years ago average weaning weight for calves was 460 pounds, and this has crept up to 480 pounds in 1963. Steer calves averaged 497 pounds when delivered to the Steens feedlot last week and the heifers 458 pounds with 30 of the top heifers removed. This was the highest average weight achieved by the Brosnans except for one year when they were one pound heavier.

Heifer calves are vaccinated for brucellosis, and at this time approximately three-fourths of the herd is vaccinated. A brucellosis test is run every two years.

Calving is done on the range to keep away from disease and the adequate sheds are used only if the weather gets too cold. Disease has not been a problem in this herd. Regular vaccination for black leg, malignant edema and shipping fever is made. A top battery of bulls is given much of the credit for the excellent type calves weaned from the cows. Bulls are selected from top registered breeders that have kept good performance records.

Jeremiah Brosnan, who worked his way westward after landing in the United States from Ireland, witnessed in Ogden, Utah, the driving of the Golden Spike that completed the first cross-country railroad. After working for Hugh Fields, rancher, at Bucks Corners, he found the site at Little Butter Creek that he liked and first engaged in raising horses.

With the coming of the Boer War, agents of the English government came through the country purchasing horses and most of Brosnan's stock were sold for that military purpose.

Cattle have dominated the ranch since that time although Jerry's father, John Brosnan, ran two or three thousand head of sheep starting in 1928. A flock of sheep was maintained, in addition to the cattle, until two years ago.

The present Jerry Brosnan, whose nickname stems from "Gerald," as contrasted with the "Jerry" for his grandfather, which stemmed from "Jeremiah," was born on the ranch and has remained right there. His longest absence was three months when he went to Montana to herd sheep on one occasion.

His affection for the Butter Creek place was expressed eloquently when he said, "I was damn glad to get back!" John Brosnan, his father, was born, raised and died on the ranch. He was born in 1885 and died November 19, 1952.

Jerry's mother, Zetta Brosnan, who lives alone in a home just a short distance down the road from Jerry and his family, is a Heppner native whose maiden name was Zetta Hager. She is a first cousin of Mrs. A. D. McMurdo and the late J. O. Hager, justice of the peace here for many years.

Zetta, now 75, has the same love for Little Butter Creek as the rest of the family. She occasionally comes to town for the winter, but much prefers staying on the ranch and is always anxious to get back where she has "room to breathe."

Jerry's wife, Marian, is a native of Monmouth and went to the normal school there (now Oregon College). When she qualified as a teacher she accepted a position at the Lena school. Never having been here before, she found that there was no public transportation beyond Arlington when she made the trip in September, 1935.

She finally hired someone to take her to Heppner and when she arrived she had just a dollar left in her purse. Looking at the unfamiliar landscape upon arrival, it would have taken very little for her to turn around and go home.

But she found fine friends in John and Zetta Brosnan and family at whose home she boarded, and the friendship with Jerry culminated in their marriage in Hermiston in March, 1936.

Eddie continues the family tradition, and at 25 shows little inclination to leave the home place and remains as a partner with his father while brother Dan, 20, is an airman second class with the Air Force and John, 26, handles the Carlson operations. A fourth child is a daughter, Mrs. Dick (Joann) Robison, 23, of Heppner.

All are graduates of Heppner High school. John attended the University of Oregon for a time and then went to California Polytechnic at San Luis Obispo. Joann attended two terms at Oregon State University before her marriage. She and Dick have a son, Craig, two years of age.

Mrs. Robison was valedictorian of the Heppner High school class of 1958 and received the Soroptimist club scholarship for her college attendance. While in high school she also won the United Nations Pilgrimage, sponsored by the Odd Fellows.

All three boys were athletes in high school and were particularly interested in football. Eddie was chosen for the Shrine All-Star team. They were all active in 4-H and FFA, and Eddie, with Ron Currin and Jack Monagle, was on the top livestock judging team at the Pacific International show one year, first time in history that this honor had come to Morrow county. Competition was against teams of 11 western states. The next year, with Dean Graves taking Monagle's place, they went back and won again.

Eddie's name will be found occasionally, too, among competitors at rodeos. He won the junior calf roping in the Morrow county rodeo one year.

Dan has enlisted for four years in the Air Force and has served more than two years, having trained at Shreveport, La. He went to Japan in May of this year. John served a 2-year hitch in the army and Eddie is a member of the National Guard, his longest time away from home being the six months that he served in training last year.

While Jerry has chosen to stay with the home place to earn his living and raise his family, his brother, Joe, and sister, Mrs. Margaret Williams, followed different courses. Joe, who has been recovering from a serious automobile accident that occurred just north of Ione early this year, is in Portland where he is a representative of the Kraft Cheese Co. He suffered a stroke earlier this month and has been incapacitated from this and injuries from the accident.

Mrs. Williams lives in Hot Springs, Arkansas.

Mr. and Mrs. Brosnan have been active in county and community activities. Each has served as a 4-H leader. They are members of St. Patrick's Catholic church and of the Livestock Growers association. Marian has never quite left the school teaching profession despite her role as ranch wife and mother. She still does substitute teaching in
