

Scots, Stanfield On Lone Agenda

Ione High has its job cut out for it this week-end as far as the basketball picture is concerned. The Cardinals must fight off the win-hungry Stanfield Tigers Friday night and then attempt to pull one of the biggest upsets of the season Saturday night when they meet the league-leading Scotties of McEwen.

Stanfield has won only one of its league encounters this season but in its last outing, the Tigers gave Riverside a good run for the first half of the ball game.

The lone-Stanfield contest will be played on the Ione court. When the Cardinals take on the McEwen of Athena Scotties, it will be another league tussle. The Scots are currently in the lead of the Umatilla-Morrow league with an 11-0 record and there is no indication that they are going to slow down.

Tuesday night the Scots gave A-2 Heppner a scare before the Mustangs were able to pull out a 56-51 win over their B opponent.

The Scots have won all but three of their games this season, two of the losses being suffered at the hands of the Mustangs quint.

Miss Lena Martin of Portland arrived Sunday evening to visit with Miss Opal Briggs, Mrs. Mattie Green and other friends in Heppner. She plans to spend perhaps a month with her friends here. Although Miss Martin never lived here, she became well acquainted when she came often in years past to teach in the summer vacation Bible school.

Planning Consultant Presents Community Improvement Ideas

IRRIGON — Joe Kozlovski, planning consultant from Lake Oswego, met again with the Irrigon Planning Commission and the City Council Wednesday evening, and presented a preliminary community plan for the City of Irrigon. The broad object of this planning is to further the welfare of the people in the community by helping to create an increasingly better, more healthful, convenient, efficient and attractive community.

Two plans were presented, designated as Scheme "A" and Scheme "B", and the advantages of each were discussed. In regard to the commercial part of the report, it was pointed out that it might be advantageous to retain the businesses on the highway for tourist trade as well as the residents, and also to plan for a shopping center on the north side of the highway, which would appeal chiefly to residents.

In regard to industry, Kozlovski pointed out that the area offers convenient rail, water and highway transportation essential to most industries. A site has been designated for industry that is isolated from the residential area and does not divide the city.

In regard to residential, Kozlovski pointed out that there are several factors making Irrigon a desirable place to live, even though work might be situated either east or west of us. He pointed out mainly the location of the city directly on the Columbia River, and also the number of trees in the community. He also recommended a tree-planting program for areas that would be expected to become recreational and park areas. Kozlovski has one more meeting with the city under the contract but stated that he would come an extra time, if necessary.

Boardman Access Hearing Slated

A hearing on the problem of severance of eight county roads in the Boardman area with the relocation of highway 80N has been scheduled at Boardman at 10 a.m. on Tuesday, February 18, County Judge Oscar Peterson said Wednesday.

The meeting, which will include the county court, representatives from the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers and the State Highway Department, as well as Boardman officials, was scheduled after a committee from Boardman presented two proposals to the county court Wednesday.

The committee, which included Walter Hayes, Art Allen and Dewey West, asked for one of these alternatives:

1. To build an alignment road running on the south side of the highway from the Irrigon-North Lexington interchange to the bombing road-airport interchange.

2. Pave Wilson road in its entirety from the Lexington road to the west end of the project, and extend and pave the Ed Kuenze road to the airport road.

They asked that the meeting be called to discuss these proposals.

Tighter Control At Dump Aim

cers should be sought to enforce "litterbug" laws.

At the same time, Green agreed to keep his loads covered to hold loss from his truck to a minimum. He said that he had been covering loads whenever there is any wind, but agreed to cover all loads henceforth.

City Superintendent, Vic Groshens and councilmen agreed that the city lost control of the dump by allowing the public access to it at times when there is no supervision. Loads of papers often have been dumped in the open pit and winds catch them and carry them over the countryside. Others have emptied loads into incinerators and ignite them. Paper cannot escape from here, but when Green arrives with his loads he cannot get into the hot incinerators.

Some contractors, in the process of wrecking buildings, have hauled waste materials to the dump, and not knowing where it should be placed, have unloaded it where it is a nuisance.

It was pointed out at the special meeting that supervision on the week-end afternoons, when free dumping is allowed, has not been satisfactory, and a new employee will be hired in order to work more cooperatively with the public but yet assure a tighter control.

Bert Corbin, who has rented land on the south and west sides of the dump, also appeared and said that he is mainly concerned with the fire hazard. The city agreed to remove grass on its property that might ignite and run to adjacent lands.
