PAUL JONES

Paul Jones
Democratic Candidate
For Morrow County Judge

Morrow county at this time occupies a unique position in the State of Oregon. With the promised development in the north end of our county, with the highway and road building on Route 30 and with the further expectation of flood, recreation and irrigation dam near the City of Heppner, our county is just now on the verge of expansion, both industrially and from a recreation viewpoint.

Morrow county should and must continue its close cooperation with the Mid-Columbia Planning Council and with the port commission for comprehensive development of our water and industrial potential on the Columbia River. When the John Day Dam is completed, we have some of the best deep water locations on the pool. This will tend to make a demand for increased barge traffic with a consequent call for facilities.

I believe that a long range study of road planning for this county should be made with the thought in mind that when recreational and industrial expansion comes, more and better roads will be needed. This should only be done, however, within the framework of our tax structure. It is my belief that soil and water conservation in our county is of primary importance both from the viewpoint of recreation as well as from the demands that will be made upon it from future generations. For this reason every step should be explored in looking toward the future of conservation planning.

These policies can be carried out under our present tax structure which, when the present tax equalization plan is completed will put all on an equal tax base.

GILES FRENCH

Giles French
Republican Candidate
For State Senator (18th Dist.)

Giles French is a candidate for the Republican nomination for state senator from the 18th district which comprises Morrow, Gilliam, Wheeler, Sherman, Wasco and Hood River counties.

He is a native, having been born in Sherman county and having spent nearly all his life there as farmer and stockman, machinery salesman, editor of the Sherman County Journal, and often as community man of all work.

He served eight sessions in the Oregon House of Representatives where he was often chairman of the taxation committee where all tax legislation must originate. He was also active in legislation affecting education, agriculture, labor and industry and judicial problems.

He believes that Oregon's small counties should have better representation in Salem because their problems are different from those of the more populated counties; that taxes need not be increased; that not only the cost, but the growth of government, could be curtailed or at least slowed.

He feels certain that his experience could help bring these things to pass and that he has a good knowledge of the district he seeks to represent.

IRVIN MANN, JR.

Irvin Mann, Jr.
Republican Candidate For
State Representative (28th Dist.)

A representative from the 28th legislative district (Morrow, Sherman, Wheeler, Gilliam and Umatilla counties) should remember, subject to the dictates of his own conscience in social and economic legislative matters, that first and last, he is representing the best interests of his whole district and eastern Oregon. This I would do, and I would remember that I am representing five counties instead of one or two.

The last thing that would influence my judgement in vital tax, school and appropriation matters would be partisan political considerations. Eastern Oregon has only nine representatives out of 35 and each of those representatives must represent eastern Oregon to the best of his ability and consider party politics of secondary importance.

I was reared on a wheat and pea ranch, and understand the wheat rancher's problems. I have a cow calf operation and am a cattle feeder and have served three years as vice-president and president of the Oregon Cattleman's Association. I am well acquainted with public lands, sanitation and disease, and the economic problems of the livestock man. I live near the geographical center of the district and feel I know it well.

I served six years on the Umatilla Port commission, most of the time as president of the commission, have been a director and officer of the Oregon Public Port Authorities and a director of the Inland Empire Waterways Association. This experience has made me well aware of Oregon port problems and the problems involved in industrial development in an area soon to be served by slack water navigation all the way to Portland.

I am a University of Oregon graduate and a veteran of World War II with two and one half years' overseas duty in the Navy.

I am married to the former Peggy Lee Reavis of Enterprise, have five children—David 21, in veterinary school at Fort Collins, Colo.; Lee Ann 18, at the University of Oregon; Julie 13, Debbie 12, and Linc, 9, in the Hermon elementary schools. We reside on the Umatilla Ranch near Stanfield.
