Final Figures On Wheat Signup Just Released

By JOHN WELBES
Executive Vice-President,
Oregon Wheate League

Final sign-up percentages in the new voluntary wheat program have just released by USDA to the Oregon Wheat Growers League.

Farms having 76 per cent of the effective national wheat acreage allotment have enrolled in the 1964 voluntary wheat program.

Total number of farms enrolled were 611,728 representing acreage allotments totalling 40,682,419. Acreage diverted equalled 5,349,376 acres, of which 4,506,870 acres reflect the 10 per cent reduction in 1964 allotments from the former 55 million acre level. The remaining 842,506 acres are additional diversions from the 1964 allotments.

The total national effective allotments of 53,232,003 acres, which includes acreage provided by law for wheat farms with less than 15 acres. There are about 1.7 million wheat farms in the United States. About 600,000 of these have allotments of 15 acres or more and about 1.1 million have allotments of less than 15 acres.

It is interesting to note the percentage of sign up in the 11 plains and western states where 70 per cent of last year's crop was produced. These 11 states signed for a total of 35.6 million acres representing an average of 88 per cent of their total allotment. Percentages by individual states are: North Dakota and Montana—91 per cent; Kansas—90 per cent; Washington—89 per cent; Nebraska and Colorado—88 per cent; Oklahoma—86 per cent; Oregon—85 per cent; South Dakota 84 percent; Texas—81 per cent; and Idaho 80 per cent.

It is estimated that, on the average, wheat farmers who signed up to participate in the provisions of the program will increase their per bushel return by about one-third.

Summer School At OSU to Draw 1800 4-H Members

"Careers Unlimited" might well be the theme of the 1964 4-H Summer School at Oregon State University, June 15 to 20, reports Burton S. Hutton, state 4-H club leader.

The 1800 young men and women attending will receive a look at future career opportunities in many fields as they attend classes, assemblies and special evening programs, Hutton explained. Summer school will accent career exploration opportunities that are regularly a part of the 4-H club program, he added.

Summer school delegates from every part of Oregon will arrive on campus June 15. Each delegate—all 13 or older—is the winner of a scholarship contributed by local civic and fratenal groups and business firms in their home county, Hutton pointed out.

"One of the goals of 4-H Summer School is to encourage young people to continue their education after high school. It is hoped that the information they receive during the week-long session will inspire them to seek further training," Hutton emphasized.

Classes will be taught by representatives of commercial firms, members of Oregon State University teaching and research staffs and by extension agents and specialists.

Personal development also will be stressed in many classes, he continued. Classes in leadership, communications, nutrition, selection of clothing and accessories, music and art appreciation and medical self help are all aimed at helping the individual.

But, career opportunities will be pointed out in the majority of classes. For instance, 4-H club members 15 and older will attend classes on town and country business, food engineering science, animal science, plant science, forest science, fish and game management and home economics.

Younger club members will attend classes built around such subjects as entomology, farm crops, microbiology, tree farming, education beyond high school and "You and Your Future."

Circular Outlines Grain Varieties

Recommended varieties of wheat, oats, rye and barley are listed and describde in "Small Grain Varieties for Oregon," a new circular of information published by Oregon State University Agricultural Experiment Station.

Written by Wilson H. Foote, station agronomist and assistant director, the circular brings together pertinent information needed by small grain growers throughout Oregon. Recommendations are prepared by OSU agronomists with the assistance of county extension agents and specialists.

Varieties which have been outstanding in production and quality and, in most cases, resistant to disease, are recommended. Varieties generally satisfactory are listed as acceptable. The brief variety descriptions give essential information on adaptation, outstanding botanical characteristics and desirable agronomic traits. Copies are available from county extension offices or from the OSU Bulletin Clerk, Corvallis.
