FFA Chapter Supports National Farm Safety

Interest in the observance of the 21st annual National Farm Safety Week, July 19-25, is encouraged by the local chapter of Future Farmers of America, in interest of better farming practices. Much stress is placed through the year on chapter members observing farm safety rules, according to Gerald Jonasson, agricultural instructor. Records are kept of farm accidents and a special program has been carried out this year on tractor safety, with Paul Swagartz as chairman of this FFA committee.

The National Farm Safety Week draws national attention to the rural accident situation and promotes intensive, year-round accident-prevention programs in rural communities everywhere.

Farm, home and rural highway accidents are a serious, costly problem, according to the national safety council. Farm safety programs have helped reduce rural deaths and injuries greatly, but accidents continue to kill 8,700 and injure 800,000 farm residents yearly. The dollar cost is set at about $1.5 billion, which farm folk cannot afford, nor can the business or community leader. Farm people laid up by accident may buy less farm machinery, fewer consumer goods and farm supplies. Their income loss is a business loss to the community. And no economic yardstick can measure the human aspects of accidents—the grief, pain, disruption of families and aspirations.

Several particular safety ideas are emphasized by the farm department of the National Safety Council. These include the following:

1. Take time to take care. Be "safety conscious." Correct hazards promptly and learn to live with any hazards that can't be corrected.
2. Keep farm houses neat, orderly and safe. Check appliances, electrical wiring, power tools, heating systems, chimneys, stoves, portable heaters, etc. to reduce hazards. Work out a home fire escape plan. Clear out clutter and rubbish that could cause falls and fires.

3. Keep chemicals in original containers and store in suitable places; poisonous materials should be locked up; dispose of empty containers and unused portions promptly. Read labels, use as directed and take necessary precautions in usage.

4. Prevent falls. Repair or replace broken, unsafe ladders; provide handrails and good lighting for stairways and steps; pick up tripping hazards from around house, yard, out buildings; clean mud, grease, snow, etc. from shoes before climbing ladders or on machinery, buildings, trees, other high places. Repair defective floors.

5. Courtesy is a key to rural highway safety; adjust speed to road conditions. Be careful when entering road from farm driveway, field exits; signal well ahead of turn into farm entrance or onto secondary road from highway. Remove weeds, high crops, trees and shrubs at farm entrances and rural intersections to see and be seen while driving.

6. Keep all farm equipment in safe operating condition; keep guards and safety devices in place. Keep small children away from working machines. Refuel only cool engines. Keep fire extinguisher and first aid kit on tractors and self-propelled equipment.

7. Safeguard farm ponds to protect small children. Handle and store guns and ammunition properly. Include safety in farm family vacation plans, on camping, hunting or fishing trips; drive safely to and from recreation places.
