For Justice of the Peace in Heppner, the Rev. Earl Soward, who almost won a majority over three candidates in the primary, had a closer battle in the general election but won the position over Jim Devine, 823 to 683. The winner had margins in his favor in five of the six precincts involved but Hardman favored Devine, 22 to 9.

Three county candidates were reelected without opposition. Sheriff C. J. D. Bauman polled 1953 votes, County Treasurer Sylvia McDaniel 1808 votes and County Clerk Sadie Parrish 1890 votes.

All precincts in the county but Boardman followed the Eastern Oregon trend in its effort to get a man east of the Cascades on the State Supreme Court bench, favoring Judge Edward Howell of John Day for position No. 7 over Judge Ralph Holman of Oregon City, 1256 to 534. Boardman, however, gave Holman a one-vote edge, 87 to 86.

In the state measures, the county voters went the same route as voters across the state. mounted on horseback, and he feels very much at home in the saddle as he does his work around the ranch.

Norma was born in Wallowa but her family moved to Condon where she went to high school. Her mother, just back from a trip to Connecticut, is living with them.

Both Raymond and Norma are active in community affairs. He is chairman of the Heppner Soil and Water Conservation district, a position which he has held for nine years. A past president of the Morrow County Livestock Growers association for two years, Raymond has been membership chairman for three years and a director for eight years. He is one of the leaders of the Saddle-ittes 4-H horse club and is a member of the Morrow county rodeo board. Ray belongs to the Heppner Elks, Farm Bureau and the Morrow County Grain Growers.

Mrs. French is a past president of the CowBelles and is now secretary of the organization. Both she and her husband are active in their church.

Their three daughters are Karen, 16, a junior in Heppner high; Verina, 15, a sophomore; and Susan, 11, in the sixth grade. Verina and Susan are members of the saddle horse club, and the trophies on display in the living room of the cozy French home are those which the girls have won. There are "small fry" and "intermediate" showmanship trophies as well as the grand champion showmanship trophy won by Verina last year.

This year's livestockman at one time was pupil of the wife of last year's livestockman of the year. Mrs. Jerry Brosnan taught Raymond French and his brother Joe during their grade school years. For one year the two French brothers were the only pupils for which a teacher was hired, and their "school" was a room in a bunkhouse on the Joe Hayes place near the French ranch.

Brother Joe is now an attorney in Pendleton. A sister, Mrs. Dorothy O'Rourke, is also living in Pendleton. Her husband, Larry, formerly taught school in Heppner. A half-sister, Mrs. Vern (Francine) Evans, now lives in Pilot Rock.

Asked if he were related to Peter French, the famous Oregon cattleman of the Harney Basin country immortalized in several books, most recent of which is Giles French's "Cattle Country of Peter French," Raymond said that there is a distant relationship.

A tour of his operation and a visit to his home shows that Raymond does credit to his renowned relative.
