John Day Takes Wright Trophy in Golf Match

By VIRGINIA KELSO

KINZUA—John Day Golfers downed the Kinzua golfers by a score of 16-14 when the John Day players put the shanks under the Kinzua swingers to retain possession of the coveted Wright Memorial Trophy on Sunday at the local golf course.

It was a hotly contested battle of individual matches, turned in by the best each club had to offer, in the quest of the trophy which is dedicated to the memory of the late Slip Wright and symbolic of superiority between the two clubs.

As the afternoon wore on it was evident that the score would be as close as a hand-aid to a sore finger and true to expectations, the final outcome was not decided until the last match was completed. John Day also kept their hold on the Traveling Trophy for which the clubs have vied for the past five years.

The day was kicked off with a breakfast prepared and served by the "Fossil Fellows" and topped with a buffet luncheon served by the Kinzua ladies. The climax of the affair was mixed two-ball contest played in the early evening and was won by LaVina Conner and Wayland Hyatt.

Honors for the day were carried off for John Day by Joe Kulick, low gross; Marvin Ponton, low net; Barbara Gibson, ladies low gross, and Mary Redman, ladies low net.

For Kinzua: a tie between Don Slinkard and Milt Boring, low gross, Lee Bailey, low net; LaVina Conner, ladies low gross, Ola Smith, ladies low net; Don Slinkard and Ardell Ashton, long drive, and Rollo Loomis, Allen Nistad, and Barbara Gibson, closest to the pin.

GRANARY OF THE PACIFIC

A new and increasingly popular variety of white wheat called Gaines grows well in Oregon's five-county wheat belt. This field will average better than 60 bushels to the acre. The white wheat is excellent for pastry flour, and is popular in the Orient, where much of it is shipped through Oregon ports. Harvest usually begins in July and is completed near the end of August.

The manager of First National's Pendleton branch is as concerned with wheat averages and wheat production as the growers. Much of the crop volume is transmitted through First National's International Banking Department. Successful wheat ranchers in this important area rely on the financial support of First National Bank—which, they know, is people serving other Oregon people with the best in banking service.

John Locke, assistant manager of the Heppner First National Branch, is part of a friendly staff whose years of banking experience total 100. Consult these hometown people for every banking need.
