Preceding the ceremony, Miss Patricia Jordan played the traditional organ music.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a suit of oyster white imported silk-faced peau de sole with re-embroidered French lace shell, matching circlet hat and shoes. A color scheme of antique gold and white was used in the Persian Room at Kims in Salina, where a wedding luncheon was served. A floral centerpiece designed as a wedding car on honeymoon lane, was artistically surrounded by white gladioli, antique gold pompons and chrysanthemums.

Mrs. Clarence L. King, Jr., was in charge of the guest book, and Jeff and Joni King distributed rice bags from an antique gold wicker basket.
