KOG Committee Calls Attention To Care of Trees

The Keep Oregon Green Association calls attention to the following safety rules for the handling of Christmas trees in the home.

1. Because your tree begins to lose moisture as soon as it has been cut, it is recommended that as soon as it is brought into your home, you saw off the butt end at least one inch above the original cut and then place it in a cool, shady place with the butt end placed in a container of water.

2. During the entire time the tree is in use in the home, be sure the butt end is kept in water. Refill the container every day as the tree absorbs the water which keeps it fresh and green and reduces the fire hazard. Investigation carried on at the U. S. Forest Products Laboratory in Madison, Wisconsin, indicates that the use of fire-retardant chemicals often does more harm than good, hence the use of water is recommended.

3. Be sure the tree is well supported and is away from fireplaces, radiators, television sets or other sources of heat. The tree should be placed so it will not block an exit in case of fire.

4. Lighted candles or other open flames should never be used on or about Christmas trees.

5. Check electric lights and connections. Worn, frayed wires or electric cords must not be used.

6. Avoid use of combustible decorations and flammable reflectors for the colored lights. Metal foil "icicles" or tinsel must be kept out of bulb sockets.

7. Avoid overloading the electric circuits. Accumulations of wrapping paper and the placing of electrical toys under the tree should be avoided as fire hazards.

Potted or living Christmas trees brought into the home are favored by some who enjoy having the same tree as many years as it remains small enough to move in and out of doors. Ample provision should be made for watering such trees especially when indoors.
