This 1966 Review strives to refer our readers to the better business houses of Hermiston who endeavor to give their customers that "Old fashioned" personal service and honest values for your money.

The Campbell Rambler, the oldest Rambler dealer in northeastern Oregon, is distributor for two automobiles that best fit the "Honest value for your money"—the 1966 Rambler and the Toyota.

The best description of Rambler is "Where quality is built in—not added on." The rust resistant bodies, two separate braking systems, spring construction of seating, and many other standard items for Rambler that are available only in five and six thousand dollar automobiles is an example.

The Toyota with its four wheel drive and rugged construction, its complete selection of pickups and cruisers seems expressly made for the ranchers and people of eastern Oregon. If the slogan "America's new breed of workhorse" fits your need in transportation, be sure and see the Toyotas on display at Campbell's in Hermiston.

Lloyd Campbell contends that seeing is believing, and he invites our readers to stop in and really look at a Rambler or the tough ones from Toyota that are on display.
