

Beef Certificates Offered for Gifts

Appropriate for Father's Day giving are beef certificates offered through the Morrow County CowBelles, according to Mrs. Wavel Wilkinson, president.

The certificates, available in any denomination, are on sale at the First National Bank.

Donald Ostensoe, manager of the Oregon Beef Council, anticipates the sale of beef gift certificates will double over last year. More than $10,000 in such certificates were sold prior to Father's Day last year in Oregon. The state leads every state in the nation in the sale of such certificates.

Anyone may buy these attractive certificates, which come in a gift folder. There is no service charge or any other fee for the beef gift certificates. The recipient may take them to any food store on the nation and exchange them for beef up to the amount of the certificate. They are good until used. The food retailer deposits the beef certificates through his local bank as he would any other check.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Thompson, Linda and Brian, visited with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Thompson, from Friday until Sunday of last week.

Heppner District Enters Goodyear Contest Again

Heppner Soil and Water Conservation District has entered the 20th annual Goodyear competition to select the nation's top 53 conservation districts, according to Raymond French, Heppner, district chairman.

Activities of the district will be weighed against the performance of other districts in the state in determining the outstanding district in the annual event sponsored by The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company of Akron, Ohio.

Key agricultural leaders will serve as judges and will select the state winner. Soil conservation efforts from January 1, 1966 through December 31, 1966 will be considered.

Grand award for the 53 districts selected nationally will be an expense paid, work-study trip to Arizona in December, 1967, for one member of the district governing body and the outstanding farmer-cooperator in each winning district. The 106 men selected will be guests at Goodyear Farms, a 14,000-acre general farm operation near Phoenix.

Heppner district has taken part in the competition 12 times in the past and was named the state's winner twice and second once during that time. District Supervisors are Raymond French, Kenneth Turner, W. C. Rosewall, Vernon Munkers and Roger Palmer.

French said the district's outstanding cooperators will be selected from over the 300 farm operators enrolled in the district program. Nationally, over 2,000,000 farmers in over 2950 districts have signed cooperative agreements with local Soil and Water Conservation Districts.

Volunteer Firemen Tour School Grounds

On Monday evening, June 13, members of the Heppner volunteer fire department, under fire chief Charles Ruggles, toured the Heppner high school building to form a pre-plan for fighting any possible fire at the new building.

A pre-plan is absolutely necessary at this time because the water available for fire fighting will be insufficient until the building of the proposed new eight-inch city main. Chief Ruggles estimated that most of the water which would be needed for a fire at the high school would have to come from the fire department pumps.

The firemen learned the positions of automatic fire doors, heat exchange motors and electric switches. They made themselves familiar with the general plan of the building and grounds.

New Preserving Processes Aid The Unfreezables

By DONNA GEORGE
County Extension Agent

Have you ever eaten a frozen tomato? Mary M. Holthouse, OSU food marketing specialist, poses the question, and expects a "no" answer. A tomato that has been frozen and thawed would be soggy and watery, and some other foods, such as avocados, mushrooms, and bananas, are also unsuited to ordinary freezing methods.

A new process called cryogenic freezing — freezing through the use of liquid nitrogen or carbon dioxide below the temperature of minus 100 degrees F. — makes possible the preservation of foods that previously have been sold only in the fresh form. One item that has received extensive market testing is tomato slices, and quartered tomatoes are now also being offered for sale in limited areas.

A Florida packer, using the cryogenic process, processed more than 15 million pounds of shrimp last year, and reports the end product is greatly improved over shrimp frozen by conventional methods. The cryogenic method takes 20 minutes to freeze and package the shrimp. Conventional freezing and packaging takes more than two hours.

Soon we may buy fresh frozen avocado dip, avocado slices, and half shells available the year around. The new process avoids breakdown of fruit structure or taste deterioration, and may be tried on such other fruits as papaya and pineapple. In Oregon, some processors have been fast-freezing strawberries with this new method. They have been sold to a select market only, and we do not yet find them at the retail stores.

After undergoing cryogenic freezing, products may be held at normal food freezer temperatures. It looks like another milestone along the food marketing avenue has been reached, says Miss Holthouse.

WASTING FEED?

SAVE FEED

with Harvest Master connected to the combine collecting low-cost cattle feed

Why waste cracked grain, weed seeds, chaff straw and thrown-over grain—all of which is good cattle feed. If you're throwing it away behind your combine, you're wasting feed. And how often have you had to buy feed to winter your cattle—increasing cattle production cost, reducing profit?

The Harvest Master, towed behind the combine, eliminates this waste. It's perfect for farms with both grain and cattle, making it possible to winter cattle for less than 10¢ per day per head. Here's how the Harvest Master works: With the aid of a blower system, the unit follows the combine collecting crop by-products that are usually wasted. The wagon fills and the combine operator triggers the dump lever leaving a compact stack of good cattle feed anywhere in the field. There's no need to stop the combine. The Harvest Master is designed for non-stop operation. Feed stacks are large enough (8'x10'x7') to be rehandled economically.

The Harvest Master is an investment in profits. You buy it to make more money. In a normal operating season, the savings realized on feed will pay for the unit.

Two feed-saving Harvest Master units are now available: models 5400 and 6500. (Both are pulled by the combine.) Model 5400 takes its blower power from the combine engine and model 6500 has its own engine for blower power.
