

19 Wheat Farms Grow Moro Club For Seed Purpose

By GENE WINTERS
Morrow County Agent

Nearly 600 acres of the new Moro Club winter wheat will have been field inspected this week on 19 Morrow County wheat farms.

Inspecting the fields are members of the Oregon State University and seed certification staff.

Growers applying for certification inspection are Frank Anderson, Wilbur Worden, Oren Brace, Herman Blettell, McElligott Brothers, Nelson Brothers, Lloyd Howton, Gene Majeski and C. K. Peck. Also Melvin Moyer, Don Evans, Ken Turner, Fritz Cutsforth and Ken Cutsforth. Also O. W. Cutsforth, Pat Cutsforth, Marquardt Ranch and Earl McCabe.

Fields are inspected for varietal purity as well as freedom from other grains and weeds. Seed samples will be taken after harvest for analysis at the OSU seed laboratory. Only after the stand passes the field inspection and the seed meets the required standards will the seed be tagged as certified.

Irrigation Fair Will Show Latest Sprinkler Equipment

A sprinkler irrigation fair will be held in conjunction with the 1966 Irrigation Field Day near Lebanon, August 3 and 4.

Morrow County producers interested in the latest developments in labor saving and mechanization of sprinkler equipment should plan to attend the "fair." There will be 12 demonstrations and 15 commercial exhibits by major manufacturers in the United States.

Only at events such as this one can you really compare the equipment available and decide the one best suited for your use under your conditions.

With the relatively high initial investment in sprinkler equipment ($130 per acre and up for example) and the difficulty in getting labor has greatly increased the development of boom and automatic move sprinklers.

Crop Science Meeting Brings Out Late Wheat Research

The Western Society of Crop Science meeting, held the last of June jointly on the campuses of Washington State University and the University of Idaho, brought the writer up to date on the latest developments in crop research in the Pacific Northwest.

At this session crop scientists reported on their research results. We hope to report on those later which may be of interest to Morrow County farmers.

The amount of wheat breeding underway at Moscow and at Pullman is staggering. We can look forward, no doubt, to new varieties to meet the production and marketing problems ahead.

A visit with Dr. Vogel at W.S.U. and Dr. Pope at Idaho to their respective plots demonstrated the extent of their work.

Dr. Pope is devoting much of his time improving the good wheat varieties by removing some of their particular defects to make them better wheats through the use of back crossing. Objectives have been to include disease resistance, improve type as to straw and to improve quality variation.

Tetanus Boosters Advised by Wilcox

News comes from the Oregon State Board of Health that the first person to contact tetanus during 1966 was a 42-year-old woman in Umatilla county.

She had only a small cut yet it was large enough to admit the deadly disease. Symptoms began to appear in about a week and the patient was given dosages of human hyperimmune globulin as part of her treatment. She recovered, but some victims of tetanus or lockjaw do not.

Last year one of the four persons ill with tetanus in Oregon died. In general fatalities average more than 50 per cent.

Best protection against this disease is immunization, and everyone should have a booster shot at least every four years, according to Dr. Richard H. Wilcox, state health officer.

Gooseberry 4-H Club Donates Barrels

The Gooseberry 4-H Livestock club held a meeting at the Don McElligott home June 24 at 7:30. We painted some barrels which we donated to 4-H Summer Camp and Morrow County Fair.

In our business meeting we discussed what some of the boys got at The Dalles show. Mr. Carlson told us some things we could do for a demonstration. Phil Carlson gave us his demonstration on rope ends.

We met again July 8 at the Louis Carlson home. Kathleen McElligott and Phil Carlson went over their demonstrations which they will give Sunday, July 17, Demonstration Day.

Irrigation Survey Due On Water, Sewage

Mayor Chester Wilson of Irigton has announced that the Oregon State Board of Health and the Morrow County Health Department will conduct a house-to-house survey on water supply and sewage disposal systems in Irigton during the week of July 26.

W. B. Culham, district sanitarian, Pendleton district office, State Board of Health, will be the survey officer.

Mayor Wilson asks all residents to give full cooperation to the surveying officer.

Plan Demonstrations

Members of the Little Sisters 4-H club met July 6 at the home of Doris McCabe to practice their demonstrations for the county fair. We have two team demonstrations, and two individual demonstrations.
