

Bird, Butterfly Projects Engross 3rd Grade Pupils

"Oh, look! Our butterfly has come out!" said Sandra Bennett, third grade pupil in the room of Mrs. Velve Bechdolt at Heppner Elementary school. She was talking about the first Monarch butterfly to emerge from its chrysalis while the class was engaged in a recent project.

While this class was engaged in this project, children in the room of Mrs. Mildred Hanna, also third graders, were studying birds.

Start of the butterfly project came when the children decided to write a letter to Ashland to order the chrysalides, and they held a contest to determine who should write it. Mike Orwick won.

After the cocoons arrived, they were placed on the walls so that the children could watch the changes taking place. The pale green and gold colors changed to black before the beautiful black and yellow butterfly emerged. This process took about five minutes, but it was three hours before the insect could fly.

All but one were released, except for the one which was saved for the class science project, Mrs. Bechdolt said.

As a result of the project, pupils learned writing, spelling, language, and arithmetic, as well as science. Arithmetic was correlated because of the price paid for the chrysalides, the postage and stamps.

Mrs. Hanna's class started the bird study by finding old nests of different birds. They were collected in the fall of the year when they were no longer used. The pupils found that birds build many different kinds of nests, such as tree nests, holes in a tree trunk, the hanging nest of the oriole, and others. They learned that birds use many kinds of materials to build the nests, including grass, horsehair, mud, string, wool, twigs and sticks.

The youngsters found that birds have different sizes, shapes and colors; that they have different kinds of bills and claws, each one serving its respective purpose. Food that the birds eat, the children discovered, are insects, bugs, insect eggs, grain, fish, seeds, fruit and small animals, such as rats and mice.

At the conclusion of the project, the class made a bird booklet.

Couple Greets Guests On 25th Anniversary

The country home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Wright at Ruggs was opened to friends and relatives Sunday afternoon, October 16, for a reception which honored them on their silver wedding anniversary. Fifty-six guests called during the afternoon to extend congratulations to the couple.

Coming from out-of-town were Mrs. Wright's mother, Mrs. Wave Jackson of Monument; her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Jackson and children Candy and Craig of Portland; Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Brown of Hermiston; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Botts of Portland; Mrs. Walter Shannon and Mrs. Mary Couch, both of Condon. Many relatives and friends called from the Heppner, Ione and Hardman areas.

Fall flowers in shades of yellow and green attractively decorated the serving table and in arrangements about the rooms. Serving the large yellow-trimmed anniversary cake were Mrs. Walter Wright, Mrs. Jackson, Mrs. Ralph Richards and Mrs. Marion Palmer. Pouring were Mrs. Earl Gilliam and Mrs. Barton Clark. Mrs. Sam Steers assisted about the room, and Candy Jackson passed the guest book.

Arrangements for the reception were under the direction of the couple's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Wright; Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Smith; Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Palmer and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wright.

The honored couple has lived all their married years on the "home place". They were married October 15, 1941, in Lewiston, Idaho.

First Aid Class Continues Tonight

First aid class just getting underway here will continue tonight (Thursday) at the junior high school library starting at 7 p.m., Bob Henry announces.

The class is for the public at large and is valuable for housewives, farmers, hunters, public officials, skiers and anyone who may have an occasion to use first aid.

"This means that just about anyone could profit from the course," Henry said. "A person never knows when this knowledge might be instrumental in saving a life."

Instructors include David Potter, Ken Methvin and Chuck Rouse.

At the organization meeting, six attended, but it is hoped that interest will gain so that a class of at least 20 can take the course, which will cover two months with weekly sessions.

Lions Make Sweep With Broom Sale

Ione Lions club made a clean sweep with its broom sale in south Morrow county last week. In doing so, they helped Oregon Industries for the Blind and earned money to conduct local civic projects.

The Lions sold 190 of 250 brooms and sold out 100 whisk brooms that had available. Any who were not contacted and wish to help in the annual sale may obtain a broom by calling President Don Bristow at Bristow's Market, Ione, or by coming to the store.

Total proceeds taken in the sale, which was conducted in evenings, was $556.75 in the three communities of Ione, Heppner and Lexington. The club had the most brooms that it has ever had in its annual sale and had the best response, Bristow said.

He asked that the club's thanks be extended to all who helped make the drive a success.

Illness Claims Kathryn Yarnell

Mrs. Kathryn M. Yarnell, Ione, died early today (Thursday) in a Nursing Home in Pendleton. Mrs. Yarnell would have reached her 79th birthday on Monday, October 31. She had been in failing health for several months.

Recitation of the rosary will be Friday at 7:30 p.m. at St. Williams Catholic church, Ione. Requiem mass will be Saturday morning at 10 o'clock in St. Williams church. Friends may pay their respects Friday evening at Sweeney Mortuary following the rosary.

Campaign Starts For Boy Scouts

Annual campaign of funds to support Boy Scout work here started Tuesday following a breakfast meeting at the Waggon Wheel Cafe, La Verne Van Marter, Jr. is chairman.

The kickoff breakfast attracted some 15 men who are conducting a canvass for the two troops in Heppner, troops 600 and 552, and the area council.

Among those present at the meeting were Don Wike, council representative, and Bruce Mercer of Condon, chairman in Gilliam county. A color guard at the meeting was composed of sons of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hughes, including Tom, David and Mike.

Funds given in the campaign will be used to support the work of the local troops as well as defray a share of the cost on the area council and national levels.

Booster Memberships Go On Sale at Games

Be a Heppner Booster! By buying a 1966-1967 Booster Button, or renewing membership in the growing club for the present year, citizens can have an active part in providing public support for many worthwhile projects connected with the schools.

Memberships will be on sale at both of the coming home football games, October 21 and 28, at $2 each.

Good response to efforts of the club have made possible several worthwhile projects. Among items sponsored by the club were two scholarships to Meadowood speech clinic in the summer, street signs put up directing traffic to schools, purchasing of pom-poms to replace several that were burned, helping make possible the purchasing of new school whirlpool bath, and giving of several feeds for out-of-town basketball boys after their games.

The directors of the club are inviting the public to join them at a meeting at the Bank of Eastern Oregon conference rooms Wednesday evening, October 26, at 7:00 p.m., according to Al Boschee, coordinator.

Stockmen Meet, Farm-City Dinner Due November 2

Annual meeting of the Morrow County Livestock Growers association, to be culminated in the evening by the Farm-City banquet with an outstanding program, is scheduled for Wednesday, November 2, Larry Lindsay, president of the stockgrowers, announces.

Reuben Long, famed desert rancher of southeastern Oregon and co-author of "The Oregon Desert" with E. R. Jackson, will be principal speaker at the banquet which will be in the Heppner High school multipurpose room at 7 p.m.

Long has thousands of acres of desert range where he runs beautiful horses and raises Hereford cattle. He has lived on the desert all his life and is known to thousands as a desert philosopher with wit and wisdom far beyond most of the population.

Stewart Patty of Eugene, an assistant vice president of the First National Bank of Oregon, will be toastmaster at the banquet. He is in great demand across the state to handle such functions and is a former manager of a bank in Baker.

Livestock Man of the Year will be honored and Conservation Man of the Year will be presented at the banquet. Awards also will be made by the Heppner-Morrow County Chamber of Commerce. The banquet is jointly sponsored by the livestock growers, the Heppner Soil and Water Conservation district and the Chamber of Commerce.

A particular feature this year will be the giving away of a $100 diamond, a gift from Peterson's Jewelers, to add even more interest to the banquet.

The stockgrowers' meetings through the day preceding the banquet will be in the Elks' Temple, starting at 10 a.m. An excellent program for the meeting is also being arranged.

A business session, committee reports, no-host luncheon and other events are planned, details of which will be announced next week. Bank of Eastern Oregon will be host to a coffee hour during the day, and the Heppner Branch, First National Bank, will be host to a social hour at 5 p.m. Those who have tickets to the banquet are welcome to the social hour.

Door prizes will be given throughout the day. Tickets to the banquet are now on sale at $2.50 each at both banks. Turner, Van Marter and Bryant, Peterson's Jewelers, Columbia Basin Electric, Gonty's, the Gazette-Times, and the county agent's office.

Originally scheduled for October 26, date of the annual meeting and the banquet was changed in order to allow time for stockmen to get their cattle off National Forest Service range.

Mark Murray, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rod Murray, won a nomination for Freshman class president in the student election primaries held last week at Oregon State University. He will run against another student candidate in the general election this Friday.

Judge E. H. Howell, judge of the Oregon State Tax Court, was in Heppner Monday and Tuesday on business. He was formerly a Circuit Court judge in Eastern Oregon, has many friends in Heppner, and now makes his home in Salem.

Ski Auction Due Tuesday Night

Any persons at all interested in skiing will enjoy and profit from the used ski auction that will be held Tuesday night, October 25, in the Heppner Episcopal parish hall, Bob Henry states.

The auction will start at 8 p.m. It will be conducted strictly as a public service in order that those who have used equipment which is no longer being put to use may get it to those who desire the equipment for the coming ski season.

"Here is your chance to convert all those extra or outgrown skis, poles, boots, pants or what-have-you into cash," Henry states. "It is also your chance to buy what you may need. If you know of any new skiers starting and needing equipment, be sure to bring them."

Each item brought to the auction should be tagged with the owner's name and minimum price.

Some excellent ski movies will be shown during the evening, and plans for the ski bus during the coming season will be discussed.

Harlan McCurdy Jr., attended homecoming at Pacific University Saturday, after he and Mrs. McCurdy had gone to Portland on business. McCurdy said that he had hoped to see many old college friends but only a few from his class attended. Willamette University defeated Pacific in a homecoming football game.
