3 Easy Steps to Modern Living with Flameless ELECTRIC HEAT

You'll be surprised how easily (and economically) Electric Heat can be added to your home. It really is as simple as ABC!

First and more important, be certain your home is properly insulated. This gives the dual advantage of keeping warmth inside during the cold winter months and cool air inside during those hot summer days. Insulation quickly pays for itself in lower heating bills. Later, when you add air conditioning it will also reduce your cooling expense!

Second, select the best electric heating system for your home. Many prefer baseboard units which can be added to existing homes with a minimum of fuss and bother. If you are building a new home (or doing extensive re-modeling), consider ceiling cable. These heating elements are hidden; the warmth radiates just like the sun.

For year-around comfort, consider electric furnace and central air conditioning unit. This single unit heats your home in the winter; cools it in the summer. You live in "resort" climate all year!

The third step to greater comfort with Electric Heat? Just set the thermostat to the most comfortable temperature. That's all there is to it when you heat your home the modern, flameless way. No fuel to buy or store; there are few moving parts to oil or wear out.

Your family will like the comfort of Electric Heat. Your budget will like the low costs... both for installation and operation. It's the modern way to heat. That's why we all live better, thanks to low-cost rural electric power.
