ford, musician, and Mrs. Rachel Harnett, mother advisor.

Crowning ceremonies followed the installation.

Linda chose as her installation theme the favorite, "You'll Never Walk Alone," setting as her goal the promise that no Rainbow girl shall ever really walk alone. Mrs. Fred Hoskins dedicated a solo of the same title to the new worthy advisor, accompanied by Mrs. Miller.

Her chosen colors of pink and white were carried out in her pink foot-length Empire styled taffeta dress with high white bow, white carnation and pink rosebud corsage; also by a pink and white floral arrangement with pink candles placed in the reception rooms. The serving table was beautifully centered with a large white cake, in the shape of a book, decorated with pink flowers and inscribed with her theme. It was made and decorated by her aunt, Mrs. Elmer Heath.

Seniors Are Feted Amid Silver Fantasy At Annual Banquet

Members of the class of '67 of Heppner high school were guests of honor at the annual Junior-Senior banquet, held Wednesday evening, May 3, in the Heppner Elks lodge.

As the guests arrived, they were escorted to their places at the four full length tables by the sophomore boys, who served the banquet. The boys wore suit jackets and the girls who served the main course, wore white pique dresses, some trimmed in silver.

Clouds of silver and silver fairy castles floating in angel hair mists created a "Silver Fantasy" theme for the evening. Silver castles in clouds of angel hair adorned the tables, with a larger castle situated on the speakers' platform. Favors of small wands with a silver star at the end were at the individual places on the tables, and the words of the theme were written out on the wall in silver paper trimmed with stars. The atmosphere of fantasy was created by the clouds and stars which seemed to be suspended in mid-air from the ceiling. Clouds, made of tumbleweeds, were sprayed with silver, then covered with angel hair.

Verina French, a senior, gave the invocation before the meal. Junior class mothers prepared the banquet meal of roast beef, whipped potatoes and gravy, string beans, tomato appetizers, tossed green salads, hot rolls and ice cream with strawberries. Serving was done by the sophomore girls and boys.

David Hall of the junior class presided over the banquet program as master of ceremonies. John Rawlins presented a humorous after dinner speech. As is customary, the junior class president, Marsha Lovgren, gave a short speech of welcome and appreciation, with the senior class president, Jan Hager, responding in behalf of the guests. Principal Dick Carpenter spoke briefly with words of appreciation.

Musical entertainment was provided by guests from lone high school. Miss Rita Kerr and Bonnie Hynd, accompanied on the piano by Deniece Matthews, sang two selections, "More" and "The Sweetheart Tree."

Scouts of Heppner Troop 661 attended a Camporee for the Oregon Trail District at Cold Springs Reservoir near Hermiston Friday, Saturday and Sunday, May 5, 6 and 7. Dwayne Steers and Barney Marshall were tapped out for Order of the Arrow; Brian Hughes, also elected to Order of the Arrow, was unable to attend the camporee. Members of the troop's patrols scored several times in scouting competitions.

Dancers Enjoy 'Mod' Atmosphere for Prom Sponsored by Juniors

By PAM McCABE

Carol Rawlins and John Du-buque were crowned queen and king of the 1967 Heppner High school prom Saturday evening, May 6. The selection, made by secret ballot by the junior class, was announced at intermission during the dance. Erin Dick and Kay Daggett were named princesses for the court, escorted by princes Dave Cooper and Jeff Turner. A court's dance followed the coronation.

The "mod" atmosphere of an "Old English Pub" was carried out for the prom, and music for the dance was provided by "The Canterbury Tales" from Seattle, Wn.

Guests entered by a long walk around the back of the stage which was decorated like a hall. The blackness of the hall opened through a curtain door made of narrow bamboo-like strips. As in the English pub, the prom had a dark, but friendly, atmosphere. A false ceiling spraying out from a Go-Go cage in the center of the room, made the atmosphere even closer. Tables were set up in the back of the room, covered with checked cloths and centered with candles in assortment of bottles and baskets of snacks. An authentic looking bar in a pub was extended across the back of the room, decorated with mirrored shelves, empty kegs and bottles carrying out the desired effect. Large pictures of various musical stars were placed on the black covered walls.

Two girls wearing mini-dresses and white boots, danced in the Go-Go cage during the evening. Both girls, Patty Luciani and Donna Bradley, were seventh graders. Eighth graders who served were Janet McCurdy, Alene Boyajian, LaVerne Van Marter and Ronnie Sherman. The girls wore mini-skirts and long sleeved white blouses with wide ties; boys wore white shirts and red vests.

Committee chairmen were Sheila Luciani, general chairman; Merri Lee Jacobs, decorations; Kathy Matthews, band; Nancy Doherty, court, and Vickie Robinson, refreshments.

Chaperones for the evening were Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Munkers, Mr. and Mrs. George Luciani, Mr. and Mrs. George Steagall, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Starks, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Doherty and Mr. and Mrs. Gail McCarty.

The seniors were given a breakfast after the prom by their mothers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Hager; juniors attended a breakfast at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Munkers, and sophomores went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Clough.
