$30 Prize Goes To Mrs. Munkers

Mrs. Vernon Munkers of Lexington wins $30 this week for correctly identifying last week's Who's Who personality and finding all the clues hidden in advertisements in the June 22 paper.

Her name was drawn from a large number of entries by Police Officer Bert Corbin, who this week acted as judge.

The person identified is Mrs. Howard (Jo) Pettyjohn. The clues used in describing her were: relatives, galore, native, bowling, basketball, daughter, buildings, redhead, S.O.C. hunting, farm, sons, football, supplies. The only clue, perhaps, that needs explaining is "S.O.C." Mrs. Pettyjohn once attended Southern Oregon College.

Another $30 awaits some fortunate person next week if his slip is drawn from the entries and it correctly identifies this week's Who's Who and supplies a complete and correct list of the clues.

To enter for the June 29 contest the entrant must deposit his entry in a box at Jack's Chevron Station, Gardner's Men's Wear, Van's Variety, and Heppner Inland Chemical.

Details on the contest are printed elsewhere in this paper.
