Trip Takes Hustons To Boyhood Home In British Columbia

Mr. and Mrs. Orin Huston returned Sunday, July 30, from a trip to his boyhood home in British Columbia.

They left on their trip July 20 and stopped at Waterville, Wn. to visit his cousin, Mrs. Fay Herron.

Continuing north, they drove to the hometown of his youth, Ashcroft, B. C. His parents had operated a livery stable and hotel in Ashcroft and later moved to a ranch out of town when their business burned.

Mr. and Mrs. Huston found many buildings familiar to Huston which are still preserved in Ashcroft, including one house in which Huston and his parents had lived, the firehouse and the schoolhouse where he attended school. They visited with a friend, Lew Cummings, whom Huston had not seen since 1922 and who is now publisher of the Ashcroft Journal, the local newspaper.

At the ranch ten miles from Ashcroft where his father had raised sheep and horses, Huston found the original home building still much the same except for some interior modernizing. The ranch has now been converted into the "YD Guest Ranch" for vacationers, where present owners, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Ferguson, have inviting activities for travelers, including trail rides, fishing and hunting, rock bounding, and camping and trailer facilities.

Continuing north on the Caribou Road highway, the Hustons visited his cousins at Soda Creek and spent some time at a lake nearby where the cousins, their children and grandchildren were picnicking, boating and water skiing. Before returning south they visited another cousin, Inez Barlow, at her summer cabin on McLeese Lake.

According to the Hustons, one of the things that amazed them on the Canadian highways was the great amount of traffic. The excellent highway along the old Caribou Road was crowded with cars including many from different states of the United States.

On their return trip, the Hustons stopped for four days with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Clark, and three children at Clackamas, near Portland.

ham at Westminster Presbyterian Church in Portland.

Guests at the Roy W. Lindstrom home over the week-end were 2nd Lt. Jay Johnstone and 2nd Lt. George Lipp, who are with the 4625 Support Squadron at Adair Air Force Station, and Rex Cameron, who is a computer operator with Systems Development Corp. also at Adair Air Force Station.

Naomi Matthews Claims $30 Prize In Week's Contest

Mrs. Verlin (Naomi) Matthews has entered the Heppner Merchants' "Who's Who" contest in the Gazette-Times every week since it started in April. This week she became a winner for the first time, and claimed the week's prize of $30.

Earl McKinney of Hermiston acted as judge for this week's contest and drew the winner from another bumper crop of entries. An estimated 500 were entered, down somewhat from last week's record of nearly 700 by actual count, when Peggy Snyder claimed the contest's biggest prize of $105.

Garland Swanson of Lone was correctly identified as the mystery person of the week, and Mrs. Matthews, who is a cook at Heppner Elementary school, had all 16 clues listed in "apple pie" order.

When notified by Helen Sherman of the Gazette-Times that she was a winner, Mrs. Matthews said, "I can really use it, I'll tell you!"

Clues that identified Swanson, one of the county's prominent citizens, were John's son, Standard Oil (former distributor), Strips (his ranch is a picture of strip cropping), "Idaho Spud" (born in Idaho), King of Beasts (member of the Lions), Fair earlybird (was a member of the fair board in its early years), Errant bomb (a Navy plane dropped a practice bomb in his driveway a number of years ago), Treasurer (of port commission), Conservation (former Conservation Man of the Year), Pretty place (the Swansons have a very pretty home), Once "Hizzoner" (former lone mayor), Children: 3 J's and D (John, Jim, Jean Ann and Dennis), Married in Salem, Won a Miller (wooded and won Miss Irene Miller, now Mrs. Swanson), Elevators (formerly operated grain elevators), Rars Stars (the Swanson boys have starred in athletics).

Since Mrs. Matthews "cleaned the pot" this week, the contest starts again next week at $30-$5 for identifying the mystery guests and $25 for listing all the clues—if your entry is drawn.

After this issue (August 17) there will be only one more week in the contest.

Those competing with clues found in this paper should submit entries any time prior to 4 p.m. next Tuesday in boxes at one of the following businesses: J. C. Penney Co., Tum-A-Lum Lumber Co., Elma's Apparel, or Central Market.

During the three-month contest, the following number of predatory animals have been turned in: 21 coyotes, 3 bobcats, 3 coons, 39 porcupines, 566 adult crows, and magpies, 330 non-flying crows and magpies, 392 crow and magpie eggs, 1869 ground squirrels and 35 starlings.

The committee was pleased with the response of people in the county in participating in this, the first such contest, and plans will be made on ways of improving it for next year. Working with Schwarz on the committee have been Wayne Hams, Dick Robison and Howard Crowell.

The club wishes to thank the following donors who helped make the contest possible: Kenneth Cutsforth, $5; Dick Wilkinson, $20; John Eubanks, $5; Hynd Bros., $20; Court Street Market, $5; Columbia Basin Coop., $20; E.
