try. From their 39, the Redbirds moved to scoring position on six plays, and Quarterback Chris Lovgren sneaked it over from one yard out.

Ball set up the touchdown stage when he made runs of 28 and 25 yards on the drive. Coach Meyers says that his team is now in the best condition it has been all year. Most injuries have healed, and Jim Swanson, who suffered a broken bone in the hand several weeks ago, is now hoping to be back against Prairie City.

Main problem now, the coach states, is to keep his team in practice and mentally "up" through the three long weeks ensuing.

Duane Steers, 13, Survives Night Lost in Woods

state game agent, locating him by the fire.

The boy's feet were blistered from his many miles of hiking, and his ankles and knees hurt. One relative said that he was so tired that "he was in kind of a daze."

During the more than 20 hours he had nothing to eat and so was very hungry when he was found. However, he said that he had come upon a yellow Jeep parked in the woods and had searched it for food.

He found some Spam and Vienna sausage in the vehicle but didn't take it, he said, because he didn't like them. He didn't think it might belong to someone who had set up an elk camp early.

The hunting party had been seeking deer on the last day of the season on West Alder Creek between Tupper and the Ditch Creek guard station when the boy became lost on a drive. When he was found, he was in the same vicinity.

His relatives marvelled at his condition after the night of exposure. It rained rather heavily in the woods, and at times part of it seemed to be half snow. When he was located by the fire, his clothing was almost dry, although his feet were wet. He was not wearing a coat, with his sweatshirt his heaviest garment.

But Duane wasn't the only person who was "bushed" Monday. The relatives and friends who spent the anxious night looking for him had drooping eyelids, too. But they were happy and relieved that the story had a happy ending.

the wreck shortly after it happened and summoned aid.

Funeral services for Johnson were at St. Patrick's Catholic church Tuesday, October 24, at 10 a.m. with Father Raymond Beard officiating. Recitation of the rosary was Monday, October 23, at 7:30 p.m. at St. Patrick's.

Interment was in Heppner Masonic Cemetery. He was born July 17, 1928, in Hays, Kansas, and was married on June 10, 1955, to Maxine Booker in Heppner.

A licensed commercial pilot, he had engaged in crop dusting in this area in the past and had lived here intermittently for about 10 years. He was a veteran of the Korean War, was a member of the American Legion, and of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in Arizona. He was also a member of the Heppner Elks lodge.

Surviving are the widow, Mrs. Maxine Johnson, Heppner; his mother, Mrs. Veronica Johnson of Hays, Kans.; a brother, Fred Johnson of Grainfield, Kans.; and three sisters, Mrs. Emma Boyd, Beaverton, Mrs. Thelma Zer, Hays, Kans., and Bessie Johnson of Oklahoma City, Okla.

Sweeney Mortuary was in charge of funeral arrangements.

Cliff Williams Nominated As Teacher of the Year

Clifford Williams, seventh and eighth grade teacher in Heppner Elementary school, is the candidate of the Morrow county chapter, Oregon Education Association, for Oregon Teacher of the Year.

Announcement was made in one of his classes last week when Alan Martin, principal, displayed many testimonials that had been written to support the nomination.

Principal Martin, who originally nominated Williams, said, "He is an excellent candidate for state and national honors. I would never have nominated him if I didn't believe him exceptionally worthy."

His name, together with qualifications, was submitted to the Oregon Education Association for consideration at the state level. Choice will be made by the OEA in correlation with the State Department of Education, Martin said.

Williams has been teaching since 1937. His wife, Mrs. Frances Williams, is a fifth grade teacher at Heppner Elementary school. They have two sons, Warren, 21, and Norman, 19.

The nominee started his teaching career after attending North Idaho College of Education from 1935 to 1937. He first taught at Worley, Idaho, for one year, 1937-38, then at Kingstons, Idaho, from 1938-41.

In 1943-44 he attended the United States Coast Guard Academy.

He resumed teaching in 1957 at Kellogg, Idaho, where he taught eighth grade mathematics and ninth grade social sci-

'Resuscianne' Set To Help in Class; Signup Invited

"Resuscianne" is ready to assist with a first aid class that will start here Wednesday evening, November 1, and invites your participation.

This is the word from Ken Methvin, who will be one of four instructors for the Red Cross course in standard first aid.

"Resuscianne" is a lifelike inflatable model of a girl used for demonstrations of mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. She is so designed that her "breathing" will respond only when correct technique is applied.

The face was modeled from that of a 16-year-old girl who drowned sometime ago in the east.

But there are many "Resuscianes" throughout the nation, this one being number 4153, purchased at a cost of some $180 by the Morrow county chapter, American Red Cross.

The public is invited to sign for the class that will start next Wednesday night in the junior high library at 7:30. Weekly two hour sessions are planned to give 10 hours of instruction in the standard course.

Other instructors, besides Methvin, are Mrs. Phillip (Betty) Doherty, who is a registered nurse; Charles House, and Norman Clow. All are employees of the U. S. Forest Service here, and Mrs. Doherty also works part time at Pioneer Memorial hospital.

All phases of first aid, as well as resuscitation, will be covered in the course. Those interested may register at Murray's Rexall Drug or sign upon appearance Wednesday night at the junior high library.

ence and English.

In 1959 he received his bachelor of education degree from Eastern Washington College of Education, and that same year took a position in Heppner Elementary school, teaching seventh and eighth grade science.

In the year 1961-62 he was an instructor in education at the University of Kansas, and then he went to Medford as an eighth grade mathematics teacher. From 1963 to 1965 he taught seventh and eighth grade science at Echo, and in 1966 returned to Heppner to teach mathematics and science.

Williams obtained his master of science degree in education from the University of Kansas in 1964.

He served as president of the Morrow county OEA last year and was a delegate to the representative council the same year. Williams attends the Christian church at Lexington and is a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Jaycees Schedule Fiddler Contest November 24-25

Morrow county Jaycees are planning to hold a Fiddlers' Contest in Heppner on November 24 and 25 that will attract outstanding performers from a wide area, Rich Vinson, chairman, said Monday.

The event will be sponsored in association with the Eastern Oregon Fiddlers' association and will have three sections in the main competition. One is for intermediates (beginners); the second is the regional contest for top professionals, coming from throughout the Northwest; and the third is the 7-county event for those in this area, including Morrow, Wheeler, Umatilla, Malheur, Grant, Union and Baker counties.

In addition there will be a contest for Old Time Fiddlers, 65 and over.

Trophies and money prizes will be awarded to the first three in each division and fourth and fifth place winners will receive trophies only.

Vinson said that the Jaycees will sell tickets to the two night performances with admission on Friday night being $1 for adults and that on Saturday night being $1.25.

It will be necessary to take in $500 to make expenses, he said.

The Fiddlers contest apparently has been very popular in other areas and attracts competition among devotees from a wide area. The Jaycees realize that the nights fall immediately after Thanksgiving but said that this appeared to be about the best time, among those available, to have it.

Abrams Impressed With Supreme Court Acting on Cases

Attorney Robert Abrams returned to Heppner last Thursday after a fast trip to Washington, D. C., where he and Alex L. Parks of a Portland law firm appeared before the U. S. Supreme Court on behalf of a client.

After having an opportunity that relatively few attorneys in the country receive—that of appearing before the highest court in the land—Abrams said that he was very much impressed by the tribunal.

The attorneys were permitted only a half-hour to present their arguments on behalf of their client, R. B. (Buster) Rand of Boardman, defendant in a condemnation suit in which the U. S. government is plaintiff. The time allowed also includes that for justices of the court to ask questions about the case, and several questions were asked. Abrams said that he was impressed with some of the justices' apparent quick comprehension of the facts relative to the issue.

When the half hour is finished a red light goes on, and consideration must cease. The plaintiff is also given a half-hour. However, both sides are supported by printed briefs that must be submitted to the court.

Attorney Abrams said that he was as much engrossed in listening to other cases as he was interested in the case that brought him there. He admitted to being somewhat nervous when their turn came.

The case was heard in early afternoon Wednesday. Parks and Abrams boarded a plane later that afternoon and, with the three hours gained on time changes, were in Portland about 8:30 Pacific Daylight Saving Time.

Upon arrival, though, he learned that his luggage had gone on to San Francisco, and he remained in Portland overnight to await its return.

The case presented to the Supreme Court involves lands taken from Rand on the Columbia riverfront in connection with the John Day dam project. The attorneys appealed a decision of the U. S. District Court, won in the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco where the district court was reversed, but the U. S. Government appealed to the Supreme Court, which, rather surprisingly, took jurisdiction.

Theresa Harshman First in Contest

Theresa Harshman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Harshman, won first place in the speech contest sponsored by the Heppner Soil and Water Conservation District last Thursday night in the Heppner High school multipurpose room.

Second in the contest was Jerry Healy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Healy. Both are juniors at Heppner High.

Miss Harshman will compete in the area contest at Hermiston on Tuesday, October 31. If she wins there, she will continue in regional competition. Eventual winner will go to the state finals which will be in connection with the annual meeting of soil and water conservation districts at Lakeview on November 10 and 11.

Ken Turner, chairman of the contest, said that he felt the winner's talk was very good and says that she will represent the local district very well.
