'Sounds of Radio' Heard at Chamber Meeting Monday

In a unique and enjoyable program, Ted A. Smith, vice president and manager of Radio Station KUMA, Pendleton, assisted by Lee Casey, production manager, presented "Sounds of Inner Space" at the Nov. 27 luncheon meeting of the Heppner-Morrow County Chamber of Commerce.
 They used electronic sound equipment to retell the story of broadcast radio and its importance as a communication medium, blending humor into the presentation.
 Sound equipment was so placed in the room that it gave an added dimensional effect, adding to the realism of the program.
 Pointing out that no other medium so stimulates the imagination as radio, Smith said that the listener has a personal identification with sounds.
 This brings a reaction from the multitudes, he said. One of the famous incidents of radio used to illustrate the point was the presentation by Orson Welles years ago on an invasion from outer space. Imagination of the public ran rampant and struck terror with thousands of people.
 "Radio learned a lesson from this that it never forgot," Smith said.
 He told how radio served the public during the blackout of the northeast part of the country a couple of years ago when that region was paralyzed by a power failure. Many were trapped in subways, elevators and other places. However, transistor radios brought solace to these people, conveying the message that it was merely a power failure and not an invasion nor attack that caused the sudden paralysis.
 Smith said that KUMA's application for 10,000 watts of power has been withdrawn from the Federal Communications Commission because it appeared that a Eugene station had the "inside track" for the one permit. The station had spent $21,000 on the application until that time, he said.
 Many individuals, organizations and businesses in this area had supported the application with letters and communications telling the benefits that would accrue to this area from the increased power.

HOSPITAL NEWS
 Patients admitted to Pioneer Memorial hospital during the past week, and still receiving medical care, are the following: Elythe White, Ione; Clara Kincaid, Ione, and Ray Boyce, Ione.
 Those who received medical care, and were later dismissed, were Marie Rinehart, Condon, and Robert Pierce, Heppner.

Survival Course To Start Tuesday

A personal and family survival course which will be held at the courthouse, Heppner, starting Tuesday evening, December 12, will begin at 7 p.m. instead of at 7:30 as previously announced, Ted Smith, county Civil Defense coordinator, states.
 Considerable interest has been shown in the course by the public, he said, and a good turnout is expected. The course will be taught by Mrs. Dorothy Viera through the State Department of Education.
 It will consist of four three-hour sessions on consecutive nights, running through Friday, December 15. The public is invited. County employees, firemen and others who would have special responsibilities in case of nuclear attack are especially urged to attend.
 Each session will be split by a coffee break.
 To be covered in the instruction are these points: Nature and effects of nuclear warfare, especially fallout and protective measures; importance of personal and family survival planning; what you must do for yourself; what Red Cross and other agencies may do for you; techniques of survival; state and local disaster plans; national warning system; national community shelter program; shelter equipment and supplies; ways of purifying water; family radiation detection and decontamination measures; effects of chemical and biological weapons.
 Certificates will be given upon completion of the course.

Club Elects Officers

School Committee Urges Directors To Consider Shop

Heppner-Lexington school advisory committee urged directors of school district R-1 at the regular board meeting Tuesday, November 21, to give consideration to the "real need" for shop facilities at Heppner High School.
 The report from the advisory committee was given by Dr. Wallace Wolf, who said that the advisory group had met recently and discussed "everything from taxes to the length of girls' dresses."
 The advisory committee also recommended that a district building committee be appointed annually for four reasons: 1. To maintain familiarity with present facilities. 2. To continue an awareness of contemporary school construction. 3. To determine long range building needs of the county. 4. To set up a time table for solution of these needs.

Much of the rest of the business at the board session concerned transportation. There was considerable discussion on requests for mileage payment in lieu of transportation of students and several individual cases were considered.
 At the end of the discussion, the following policy on payments in lieu of transportation was adopted:
 "School district payments in lieu of transportation for those students attending schools in Morrow county will not be approved unless such payment is in the best interest of the Morrow county school district."
 "Students attending special education classes in other school districts will be entitled to transportation or payments in lieu of transportation providing the classes are not offered in Morrow county schools."
 "The rate of pay for students attending school in Morrow county will be based on a flat rate of 10¢ per mile per family to the nearest bus route as payment in lieu of transportation. The rate of pay for special education students attending public schools outside of Morrow county will be $1 per day in lieu of transportation."
 Payment for bus drivers was considered in considering the current salary schedule. Supt. Ron Daniels reported on a survey of other school systems he had taken and presented the findings.
 The board found that the bus drivers' schedule at the present time is comparable with those in other areas, and it was left as it is.
 Salary schedule for the bus supervisor was also considered and a schedule was adopted.

Need for Farmer Activity Stressed In C of C Report

Farmers have only about 10% as much representation in government as they had some 10 years ago, Harlan McCurdy, manager of Morrow County Grain Growers, Inc., recently told the Heppner-Morrow county Chamber of Commerce in an impromptu report of a meeting of farmer cooperatives that he attended recently in Portland.
 In making the statement, he quoted Richard T. O'Connell, secretary of the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives, who was one of the principal speakers at the meeting.
 "If farmers wish to keep their place in the economic picture, they have to become more active," McCurdy said. "If they don't within a few years they will cease to be a factor on the national scene."
 McCurdy's remarks followed a report by Gene Winters, Morrow county agent, on the agricultural income of the county for the past year, which was in excess of $10,000,000.
 County Judge Paul Jones spoke at the meeting to announce the special election on the road serial levy which will be on Friday, December 8. He discussed some of the reasons for the $150,000 annual levy.
 Orville Cutsforth said that he and others figured that the levy cost an average farmer the equivalent of about the cost of one tire per year.
 "We figure that the average farmer makes a profit on the levy by reducing the wear and tear by reducing the wear and tear on tires and equipment," he said.
 The chamber was to view a picture of Bonneville Power Administration presented through Columbia Basin Electric Co-op, but technical difficulties prevented it from being shown.
 At an ensuing board of directors meeting, a sum of $25 was voted to be turned over to the Morrow County Road Improvement program to help sponsor an advertising campaign to inform people on the road serial levy election.
 A sum of up to $150 was approved for replacing Christmas decorations and colored lights with Harley Young, manager of Columbia Basin Electric, authorized to expend the money as needed for the purpose.

John Hill Again Denied Permit

 A complaint of a resident throwing trash on the Willow Creek bank reached the council. Since this is in violation of the city ordinance, the matter was referred to Chief Kolkhorst with instructions to ask the resident to clean up the trash.

 A request was made to install a guard rail at the foot of the Chase Street hill for a distance of about 75 feet to prevent cars from sliding off the steep hill when the steep hill is slippery. Councilman Jerry Sweeney supported the request when he said that he observed several cars sliding out of control in the recent snow.
 Supt. Groshens also suggested the council look into the matter of removing the stop sign at the bottom of the hill since traffic intersecting from the east and west is stopped. Groshens said that when the hill is real slick it may be impossible to stop at the bottom. The matters were referred to the street committee for investigation and recommendation.
