Answers Given On Questions About Welfare

Following is a column from the State Public Welfare Commission that answers some of the questions frequently asked about welfare. The Morrow County welfare office reports that these questions are asked many times here, and the column is printed as a public service.

Recently my social security increased, but my welfare check was less. Why?

Public welfare is based on your need. The amount of your welfare check is arrived at by adding the amounts we can allow for all items of need and subtracting all available income. If your total needs remain the same, your welfare check will therefore be less if you have other income with which to meet these needs.

I heard public welfare would pay other agencies to take care of certain children. Why can't public welfare foster homes be used?

When a child for whom public welfare is responsible has special problems that public welfare itself does not have facilities to treat, public welfare can purchase care for the child from a private child-caring agency or institution. If the latter has facilities appropriate to the needs of the particular child. Public welfare does use foster homes for the great majority of children who require care away from their own parents.

Why do you assist people who can afford to drive cars?

Many people need an automobile to look for work or to get to and from work, particularly if their normal occupation involves any amount of traveling or carrying of tools. Some aged and disabled people need cars to get to and from the grocery store or the doctor's office. Owning a car does not disqualify people for public assistance unless their total assets, including the value of the car, plus any other personal property including cash on hand, do not add up to more than $1000 for a single person or $1250 for a couple.

Does welfare pay for babysitters when mothers work?

Department Issues New Ski Brochure

A new brochure highlighting Oregon's many ski areas was released by the Oregon State Highway Department today.

The full-color folder, entitled "Ski Oregon," features scenic and action views of some of the state's popular ski slopes. It lists 17 individual ski areas and sufficient to meet her family's needs, including any expenses connected with working—such as transportation and child care—public welfare can supplement her earnings in paying enough to meet whatever deficit exists in her total budget.

resorts. Detailed information on the location, facilities, length of season, and rates is included in the folder.

The publication is designed to attract the out-of-state skier to spend a vacation or holiday week-end at an Oregon resort. The new 1968 version is basically the same as the 1967 folder but has a new cover and updated information.

Copies of this new ski brochure are available free of charge through the Travel Information Division of the State Highway Department, Room 101, State Highway Building, Salem 97310.
