Art Teacher Speaks On Subject of Color; Club Dinner Planned

Miss Terry Lincecum, local art teacher, presented an interesting study on the importance and increasing interest in color to individuals and in their homes at the meeting of the Heppner Mother's club last Monday evening.

The group met at the home of Mrs. Anita Stockard, with Mrs. Herman Winter as assistant hostess.

During the business session, with Mrs. Loren Lucore presiding, plans were made for the annual Valentine sweetheart dinner, with husbands of members as guests. The date of Saturday, February 3, was set, beginning with a no-host dinner at the Wagon Wheel banquet room and continuing with a program and dessert at the home of Mrs. Lucore. Kirk Horn, high school biology teacher, is scheduled to present the program.

"Color governs our lives," Miss Lincecum commented. "The average person is more color conscious today than ever, with all the brilliant, mod, psychedelic colors that have come forward in clothing, especially." Effects of color contrasts and combinations, their effects on eye perception, were brought out in chart illustrations. Contrasts of warm and cool colors were discussed, with warm bright colors giving the feeling of closeness and the cool colors, such as blue, green and grey, giving feeling of depth and largeness, important in home decorating.

Several art projects were displayed which had been used in the classroom. Of interest was the batik dyeing of materials through use of paraffin and dipping in dyes; also tie dyeing, photographs, wall hangings of yarn mantage and block printing.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses at the close of the evening.

Club is Informed On Culture of Roses; Project Reports Given

"Rose Culture" was the topic of the very informative lecture presented by E. W. Lake, a horticulturist from Hermiston, at the January meeting of the Ione Garden Club.

The meeting was held in the social rooms of the Ione United Church of Christ, and was an open meeting to which all residents of the surrounding country were invited. Hostesses were Mrs. Phill Emert, Mrs. Mary Lundell and Mrs. Garry Tullis.

Mr. Lake spoke on the history of roses, types of roses, soils and preparation, planting, pruning and fertilizing roses, mulching, winter protection, pests and diseases of roses. Mr. Lake is a former nurseryman and spends his time presently caring for the extensive plantings around the Civic Recreation building in Hermiston, helping at the Pendleton Grain Growers at flower gardening time, and devotes the remainder of his time to his home plantings and hobby of African violets.

Reports were given at the meeting on various activities recently undertaken by members of the Garden Club. A report was given on the very successful Christmas workshop held by club members previous to Christmas, at which members demonstrated and helped guests with the making of Christmas decorations. The workshop was held to replace the Christmas show held in previous years, and following its success recommendations were made that it be continued in future years.

Another report of interest was regarding the Audubon Bird Count taken in this vicinity during Christmas holidays under the leadership of Kirk Horn, of the Heppner High school biology department. Three members of the club were able to participate in this important conservation work.

The Twelfth Nite ceremony was again sponsored, with residents of Ione bringing their Christmas trees to a vacant lot, where they were burned and an appropriate ceremony presented.

The next meeting of the Garden Club will be held at the Ralph Crum home, with the program to be on "Wildflowers of Oregon".

Influence of Colors Studied at Meeting

The Rhea Creek Extension unit held its regular monthly meeting at the Rhea Creek Grange hall on Wednesday, January 3.

Topic for the day's discussion was "Becoming Color," and was led by Mrs. Lester Grasser and Mrs. Barton Clark. Bibs of different colors and textured fabrics were tried on by members so that each could see how hair, skin coloring and eyes were deciding factors on what colors were best suited for each individual.

Mrs. Dorris Graves conducted a short business meeting before a potluck dinner was served to the group at noon.

February 7 will be the next meeting of the unit.
