Officers of the Heppner lodge include Graham as exalted ruler; Darrell Padberg, esteemed leading knight; Gene Orwick, esteemed loyal knight; Marshall Lovgren, esteemed lecturing knight; Calvin Sherman, esquire; David McLeod, chaplain; Glen Ward, secretary; Bill Siewert, inner guard; Robert Mahoney, filer; L. E. Dick, treasurer; Pat O'Brien, Bill Collins, Orville Cutforth, Conley Lanham and Terrel Benge, trustees.

This year's annual will also celebrate the Centennial Anniversary of the National Order of Elks. It is expected that a large class of new members will be initiated into the lodge as this year's Centennial Class.

The first Elks Lodge in the U. S. was founded 100 years ago by a young Englishman, Charles Algernon Sidney Vivian, who came to this country to seek fame and fortune as a singer.

By the narrow vote of 8 to 7, the name Elks was chosen for the organization instead of Buffaloes by a jovial Sunday night group in New York, known as the Jolly Corks, of which Vivian was a member. When they outgrew their attic meeting room, it was agreed they needed more aim and wider scope than their usual festive agenda. When a member died and left his family destitute, the path was shown them and the organization grew to become one of America's foremost "benevolent and protective" associations.

Today there are 2,091 Elks Lodges in the United States, Puerto Rico, Guam and the Canal Zone, and as of last March the membership was a record high of 1,417,435. Although there have been many changes in the Elks organization and activities, the original guidelines still prevail: charity, justice, brotherly love and fidelity.

The Heppner Elks lodge was organized in 1897, and continues to carry on a full and active program for its present membership of over 700.
