Vandalism Acts Heavily Damage National Forests

America's Playgrounds — the National Forests — took a beating from vandals again in 1967, according to reports from Forest supervisors and district rangers throughout Oregon and Washington. Vandalism and thefts totaled $59,000 in replacement costs in 19 National Forests, said Regional Forester Charles A. Connaughton, U. S. Forest Service. The total was approximately $40,000 the previous year. The costs are in addition to regular maintenance, sanitation, and litter cleanup. Most of the vandalism was similar to that seen every year, Connaughton said. There were thefts or destruction of signs, picnic tables, water faucets, locks, bulletin boards, garbage cans, traffic counters, plumbing equipment; damage to toilets, guard stations, lookouts, other buildings; damage to or theft of personal property of summer home owners, campers, loggers, and other users of the National Forests. There were many instances in which vandals endangered others by their acts — by stealing stop signs, railroad crossing signs, and directional signs; by carving out the numbers on trail signs; by stealing fire extinguishers and other fire equipment; by changing mileage numbers on signs; by breaking bottles and scattering glass. Some of the more flagrant or irrational acts during the year: —A storage shed with six cases of dynamite was blown up, destroying the shed, damaging other buildings, and killing a doe and yearling deer. (South Umpqua work center, Umpqua National Forest). —A metal Smokey Bear sign weighing several hundred pounds was sawed from supports and stolen. (Near Randle, Gifford Pincher National Forest). —Wall framing for a comfort station being built by Corpsmen from Angell Job Corps Conservation Center was pulled down. (Mike Bauer campground, Siu-slaw National Forest). —Toilets were dropped over Diablo Dam. (Colonial Creek campground, Mt. Baker National Forest). —Ski cabin, valued at $4,600 was burned. (Warner Canyon sports area, Fremont National Forest). One enterprising visitor to Spring Creek campground, Win-

City Purchases New Fire Truck

By MARY LEE MARLOW (Held over from last week) BOARDMAN — The new fire truck purchased by the city of Boardman from the U. S. Fire Equipment Company at Stayton was delivered last week, and volunteer firemen have been busy testing it out. Fire chief Zearl Gillespie states that the truck is a 1,000 gal. a minute pumper with a thousand gallon reserve tank. In tests down at the Columbia River they pumped 1,280 gal. per minute. It has a two stage midship Hale pump. It is capable of pumping 20 gal. per minute at 900 lbs. pressure on a one-inch booster line. Jerry Jensen and Tommy Thomas of Stayton delivered the truck to about three miles west of Boardman, and Chief Gillespie and volunteers met them there and drove the truck into town. At present there are 12 volunteer firemen. The new truck is a big improvement from the two old trucks which have done service since 1954. Both 1942 models, one is a 600 gal. tank with a 100 gal. pump, and the other is a 300 gal. pumper. No disposition has been made of them at this time, except being kept on a standby basis. The city park committee met last week and started plans for completing the new park.
