

Kinzua Golfers Retain Trophy After Tourney

By VIRGINIA KELSO
(Held over from last week)

KINZUA — After one of the most hotly contested team matches since the inauguration of the competition for the "Slip" Wright Trophy, the prized cup signifying superiority until 1969 came to rest in the Kinzua club house. When all the divots had quit flying and the last putt rattled into the cup totals showed that on match play basis, the teams were tied at 15 points each but placed on medal play of total strokes, Kinzua prevailed.

Fifty-one men and women golfers from the two clubs enjoyed the golf and social activities of the day which began with breakfast served by the men of Kinzua and completed with a buffet luncheon served by the lady members.

Fo, John Day, low gross for the day was a three-way tie between Simmons, K. Hill and Ogilvie with low net going to Bob Brittain and second low net to Dan Ellison.

Doyle Dugger turned in low gross for Kinzua, second low was a tie between Don Slinkard and Milt Boring. Joe Cruz picked up low net with Vernon Miller scoring second. For the ladies, Lavin Conner scored low and Dorothy Close had low net. John Day ladies were led by Barbara Gibson with low net going to Frances Meyers.

The winning Kinzua team was composed of Slinkard, Hyatt, Cruz, Dugger, Nistad, Wham, Boring, J. Hulett, Jellick and Miller. After completion of regular play, 15 two man teams lined up in a "sole survivor" round which was won by Bud Barningham and Milt Boring.

Oregon Youth Range Camp Set in August

Oregon Youth Management Camp, under the direction of the American Society of Range Management, Pacific Northwest Section, and the Oregon State Extension Service, will be held August 4 through 10. The camp is located at the Lake Creek Recreation Association, Inc., facilities at Logan Valley near Seneca, Ore.

Many local civic groups, individuals and Federal agencies contribute to make this camp program a success. Scholarships for each boy's week at camp are contributed by interested organizations.

Further information for applying to attend this year's camp, or for groups wishing to sponsor a young man may be had by contacting Mr. Samuel R. Dunlap at 2517 S. W. Hailey, Pendleton, or phoning him at 276-3811.

Medicare Handbook Being Distributed

"Your Medicare Handbook," a new up-to-date guidebook on Medicare benefits, how the program works, and how payments are made is being distributed to older persons in Morrow county.

Vernon A. Welo, social security district manager in La Grande, said the new Handbook highlights the changes enacted in the 1967 social security amendments, improving protection and simplifying Medicare procedures. It has also been made easier for older people to read and understand.

In developing the new edition of "Your Medicare Handbook," Welo said, the SSA sought the suggestion of elderly readers as well as experts in the field of communications and representatives of professional organizations.

Delivery of the new red, white, and blue edition to the 19.6 million Americans 65 and over will be spread over the next month, Welo said. Anyone needing help with a medicare claim or other social security matters is urged to write, visit, or phone the district office at 1802 4th Street, La Grande, Oregon 97850. The phone number is 963-4131. They may also visit a representative between 9:00 a.m. and noon on the 2nd Thursday of each month at the Neighborhood Center, 120 S. Main, Heppner.

Visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Kolkhorst this week were Mrs. Kolkhorst's sister, Mrs. Frank Hyatt and two children, Terry Kay and Deborah of Portland, and a friend of Deborah's, Deborah Vaughn of Portland. The visitors arrived Saturday and remained until Tuesday.

WATCH FOR THE GREEN AND BLACK

TO SAVE OUR CITIES

We must have Rural-Urban balance

There is something we can do about the crisis that races every big city in America.

What we can do is to use our greatest resource—space—to reverse the tide of unhappy refugees from the countryside that flows to the streets and sidewalks (and slums and ghettos) of the city.

Because these refugees are the victims of a quiet revolution in agricultural technology rather than of war . . . because they travel by ones and twos and threes in cars and buses . . . because they disappear into city warrens and by-ways rather than refugee camps, they are unseen and unheeded until they pour forth into the streets in violent protest.

Riots in the cities begin with hungry children on land that has lost its promise. They and their parents move from the bleak areas of the countryside to the cities in search of another promise. But the cities are already over-crowded, straining to cope with their own growth. There is little room and less opportunity for those who are poorly-schooled, without modern skills, unequipped to meet the city on its own terms.

In many areas of rural America, rural electrics have achieved great success in developing local resources of space and people. They have helped create home-town industries providing home-town jobs with home-town payrolls.

But the job is bigger than one group. The urgency of the problem requires the effort of us all, acting in concert with Federal, state and local officials as well as the private organizations in the cities and the rural areas.

We can—and we must—restore the promise to the land. We must create the job opportunities in the small towns and rural areas. We must develop the instruments of modern living—more decent housing, more hospitals and medical facilities, better schools and libraries, improved water supplies and sewage facilities, adequate public services—that will attract and hold people who yearn for space to call their own.

America's rural electrics have been heartened by the response of the nation to their initial efforts. We look forward with high hopes to the efforts of our nation's leaders to restore the rural-urban balance in people and in opportunity. We offer our unstinting cooperation and all our resources of energy and determination in this effort.

The answer to what will we do with the next 100 million people lies in the rural-urban balance. There is nowhere else to go.

Salvation Army Extends Thanks

Lt. Col. Daniel G. Rody, Oregon-Southern Idaho divisional commander of The Salvation Army, paid tribute to the citizens of the local community for their response to the Army's recent mail appeal for funds to continue support of the service extension program.

Thanks to the contributions of local citizens, the Salvation Army will be able to maintain the 23 services offered through the service extension program, he said.

The mail appeal, used this year in the communities which normally would have been covered by the late James Rover who died unexpectedly this spring, was centered on a letter citing circumstances of three persons out of the many thousands which the service extension program will help during the coming year.

"Peggy" is one of 1300 unweaned mothers who will be helped through The Salvation Army White Shield Home and Hospital in Portland and The Booth Memorial Home in Boise.

The elderly "Mrs. Anderson" is typical of the variety of persons with problems too big for them to cope with alone. Last year, 73,000 persons turned to the Army when they needed food, clothing, help in finding a job, fuel for a cold house and a host of other needs.

"Tommy," the boy who will be able to attend camp, is one of 1,300 persons who will benefit by the physical and spiritual recreation of The Salvation Army's camping program.

Each contribution to The Salvation Army has helped make this assistance possible, Lt. Col. Rody emphasized. "By letting the community know the results of their help, we hope in some way to express the thanks of all those who have been aided," the colonel declared.

Tom Wilson Loses Fingers in Accident

Tom Wilson was dismissed from Pioneer Memorial hospital Saturday after undergoing treatment following the loss of two fingers on his right hand in an accident on Monday, July 22, at Heppner Lumber Company.

His middle finger was severed near the hand and tip of an adjoining finger was cut off. A third finger was also cut.

Wilson, while feeding lumber into a planer, attempted to remove a splinter from the machine and his hand was caught by the knives.
