

Cakes Were Delicious And Livestock Was Sleek

... at the Morrow county fair. Winners in the annual cake baking contest, sponsored by the Wheat League, are pictured at top, left. Mrs. Carl Rhea (left) of Lexington was first place winner and Mrs. Mike Saling of Heppner took second place. Mrs. Rhea will enter the state bakeoff.

Highlight at the fair again this year was the pig scramble last Thursday night before a crowd that took all spectator space available in the livestock arena (top, center). The kids had to do a lot of running but the pigs in the end, didn't have a chance.

Nels Anderson, former Morrow county agent, presents trophy to Patti Healy as grand champion livestock showman (top right). The Andersons donate the trophy, and Nels was able to come back this year to make the presentation before taking his new position in Polk county.

Outstanding 4-H girls in clothing at this year's Style Revue were the two grand champions pictured second from top (left). Linda Heath (left) was overall champion in clothing construction and was named reserve champion in the Style Revue; Jill Fadberg was grand champion in Style Revue and knitting construction. The Revue was last Wednesday night.

Earl Struckmeier's grand champion FFA steer was sold to Northwestern Livestock Commission Co. Earl, and Don Wink of the Hermiston firm are shown with the champion steer in the picture second from top, right. Wink again this year was auctioneer at the fair sale here, a job that he has faithfully performed for many years.

Excitement and enjoyment are mirrored in faces of the crowd as they watch the pig scramble (third from top, right).
