Rural Area to Get Telephone Service

New telephone cable that will bring phone service for a rural area near Heppner has received the approval of the board of directors of Pacific Northwest Bell at its August meeting.

Buried cable and aerial wire to serve the Eightmile area approximately 17 miles southwest of Heppner is called for under the $3,500 project, according to Dale Slusher, local manager for the phone company.

Slusher indicated that orders for phone service in the area involved have been delayed and the cable construction will allow the company to act on these orders.

Over 11 miles of buried cable will be constructed starting in October, with completion set for mid-November. Cable will be aerial where terrain precludes buried construction.

Including the Heppner project, PNB's Board gave its approval to more than $1.5 million in new telephone expansion and improvement projects for Oregon at its August meeting.
