

Mother's Club Plans For Annual Dinner

Members of the Heppner Mothers club gathered for the first meeting of the new year at the home of Mrs. Herman Winter on Monday evening.

Lesson on making paper flowers, previously planned for the evening's program was canceled and will be held at a later time.

Mrs. Robert Abrams, president, called the meeting to order. Mrs. Kenneth Methvin, secretary, read a note of greeting from Mrs. Anita Warner, former club member, now living in Eugene, and a note of thanks from nursing home patients at Pioneer Memorial hospital was read, expressing appreciation for Christmas wreaths and door swags received by them, and for the December birthday party, annual club projects.

The evening's business meeting was devoted largely to discussion of the sweetheart dinner, now tentatively scheduled for Saturday, February 8, at the Episcopal parish hall. The dinner is an annual event planned by the club, at which husbands are included as special guests for dinner and entertainment following. Committees have been established to proceed with arrangements for the dinner.

Members voted unanimously to invite Mrs. Elwayne Bergstrom, Mrs. Malcolm Johnson and Mrs. Dale Holland to join the club as new members.

Coffee, tea and carrot pudding with whipped topping was served to guests by the hostess, Mrs. Winter, and Mrs. Abrams, co-hostess.

Their wedding date has been set for March 22, with ceremonies planned in Eugene.

Leather Fashion Pointers Given By Extension Agent

If the leather fashion fury has caught your fancy, don't just plunge in! Keep the following points in mind, suggests Mary Speckhart, county extension agent.

First look at the cost for keeping leathers in tip-top shape. Smooth leathers need the drysuds, rinse and dry routine. But suede calls for special care. Your local dry cleaner might handle it, or it may have to be mailed to a "suede specialist." A coat might cost as much as $15 to clean. Fake leathers may be wise buys for the younger set who are still growing.

If you're considering making your own leather garment, compare the cost with the ready-made ones. A dress or coat might call for six to seven skins—each could cost $8 to $10. The lining fabric and other sewing supplies plus the time you spend sewing would also figure in the total cost, reminds the county extension agent.

If sewing with suede or leather intrigues you, follow these construction hints.

Select skins of similar weight and color tone. Notice, too, that their size limits the style of garment you choose. Pick simple styles with horizontal seams in the front and back so the pattern pieces will fit on the skins. Yokes or waistlines are suggested. Avoid styles with eased seams.

Since leather seams can't be changed, do a trial run on muslin in order to make needed alterations. Transfer changes to your paper pattern.

Use tape or paper clips to secure the pattern to the wrong side of the suede with the top of the pattern piece at the neck of the skin. Cut one skin at a time with sharp scissors to prevent stretching.

When cutting the sleeves, be sure to turn the pattern over for the second sleeve, so you cut one for each arm—right and left.

It's difficult to make pointed corners in leather, so round them off slightly when you cut. Mark construction details with chalk on the wrong side.

Where jacket and coat facings won't show, eliminate bulk by omitting them and lining the garment right to the edge, Miss Speckhart suggests. Cut jumper or dress facings from a lining fabric such as taffeta or a fabric of similar weight.

When sewing, use a medium to fine needle or a special "leather needle." Use eight to ten stitches per inch. Shorter stitches might break the leather. Clip open the darts to eliminate bulk. And make hand-worked or machine buttonholes.

Press on the wrong side using a warm, dry iron and press cloth or brown paper. Liquid adhesive will hold dart and seam edges flat. Use it to secure the hem, too, or try top-stitching for a sporty flare.
