Ted Smith, chairman of the local Salvation Army Service Unit, announces that the official kickoff of the annual campaign will be on May 19. Letters will be sent to the Army's many friends requesting their annual contribution. A prompt response to the mail will save much time and expense and will avoid the necessity of personal contact.

Response to this appeal is necessary to maintain all the services provided through the Salvation Army Service Unit, Smith stated. Requests for food, shelter, clothing and other emergency needs are given quick response in keeping with sound welfare practices.

The community can be proud of its local volunteer committee. It is the channel through which a total of 23 different Salvation Army services are made available. These include, in addition to the local welfare, camperships, aid to unwed mothers, assistance to parolees, alcoholic rehabilitation, emergency care and many other humanitarian services.
