Salvation Army Issues Reminder

A reminder is made to all who have not yet responded to the Salvation Army's Annual Maintenance Fund Appeal for the Service Extension Program in Morrow county. The campaign enters its final phase this week, according to Ted Smith, chairman of the local committee.

Unless a complete return is received, it will make it very difficult for The Salvation Army to continue a full-scale program of aid during the coming year. The committee relies on contributions to provide the funds which enable these local services to the needy of the community.

The principal effort of the committee is caring for emergency food, clothing, rent, transportation, heat and other necessities. The Service Extension Program also makes available, as needed, care for unwed mothers, medical aid, alcohol rehabilitation and other emergency care.

Contributions can be sent to Bill Siewert, Bank of Eastern Oregon, committee treasurer.

Fire Safety Improved By Electric Rods

Surest way to protect your farm from a destructive lightning-caused fire is a well-designed, well-maintained lightning rod system, according to County Agent Harold Kerr.

Don't forget the maintenance, he urges, because any breaks or loose connections could make your system more of a hazard than a help. And during Spring Clean-up is a good time to make this check-up, to be ready for summer storms.

The check-up should cover these points:

Examine all conductors carefully for breaks. Repair any loose connections.

Make sure of the system's grounding — you might better have a lightning rod expert do this.

"Take good care of your lightning rod system, and it will take good care of you," says Harold Kerr.

"If you don't have this protection on your property, however, you should give most serious consideration to installing one. Almost one out of ten fires on farms are caused by lightning, National Fire Protection Association records show. Your family and house, your farm buildings and your stock are all exposed to this hazard until you have a lightning rod system."

To make sure it is a well-designed, effective system, look for the UL "Master Label" marking.

There is one more lightning protection check-up you should do, according to Harold Kerr: see that metal fences and other large metal objects on your property are properly grounded.
