

Landscaping Book Made Available

A new Pacific Northwest Extension publication, "Plant Materials For Landscaping," is now available at county extension offices.

The bulletin provides help for any homeowner designing a new landscaping plan or improving an old one.

Prepared by Don Martel and George Fredeen, Oregon State University landscape architects, the 30-page booklet describes 400 plants, trees and vines adaptable to the Pacific Northwest.

Greenery from tiny alyssum for flower borders to the giant Douglas fir is explained. Grouped generally by size, they are then classified by manner of growth — trailing, spreading, rounded, or vertical—hardiness, flowering habits, botanical and common names.

A zone hardiness map, keyed to average annual temperature, and a classification of each plant to indicate what zones of cold temperature it will tolerate, give general guides for the gardener. He can then choose landscape materials for size and adaptability to the amount of shade or sunlight available around his home.

The booklet also has sections on rhododendron and heather culture.

Oregon and Washington Extension offices have the booklet available on request.

Use of Course Offered Golfers

Floyd LaRue, Mayor of Clatsop, has extended an invitation to Heppner golfers to use the Clatsop golf course, free of charge. This invitation was made after the Heppner course was badly damaged by the flood of June 9 and 10.

Super Stitchers Meet

The Ione Super Stitchers met at the home of Cheryl Hams. The meeting was called to order by President Teena Stefani. Melanie Ball gave roll call and we had to name a color that was suitable for each one of us. Sherri Wilson led us in the American pledge and Cheryl Hams in the 4-H pledge. In old business we discussed about giving demonstrations at fair time. We also discussed the different groups we would be in at the fair and how we would place. Mrs. Tullis gave a demonstration on how to put in a zipper and it was a different method used. Refreshments were served by Teena Stefani and Cheryl Hams. Our next meeting will be July 2 and it will be on how to grease a sewing machine.
