

U of O Outlines Revised System Of Registration

A revised registration procedure will be in effect at the University of Oregon this fall, according to Donald E. Rhoades, new registrar at the University.

The entire registration process will be conducted in McArthur Court and adjacent gymnasiums in the School of Health, Physical Education and Recreation.

The registration period will be from Wednesday, September 24, through Friday, September 26.

Students whose last names start with letters A through G will report on Wednesday; those whose last names start with letters H through N will report on Thursday; and those whose last names start with letters O through Z will report on Friday.

Students who do not report and register on these designated dates will begin a late registration process on Monday, September 29. Late registration will involve the time-consuming process of obtaining departmental signatures and other necessary requirements for registration from regular offices throughout the campus, Rhoades warns.

Drug Analysis Offered Parents By Police Labs

State Police Superintendent Holly V. Holcomb announced on September 2, that in an effort to aid parents who have reason to believe their children may be using narcotics or dangerous drugs, may now leave suspected substances for analysis by the State Crime Detection Laboratory at any State Police office in the state. Any information so obtained will be kept confidential between the parents and the State Police.

It was explained that on occasion parents will note unusual changes in the personality and habits of their children, which may indicate drug usage, and will observe unidentified tablets, capsules, powders and vegetable material in the clothing or in possession of their children.

Under the program announced, a parent may take such material to a State Police office and leave it for laboratory analysis. The parent need not leave his name, but will be assigned a number. After approximately ten days, the parent may call the office where the material was left without revealing his identity, using only the number assigned, and will be informed of the result of the analysis.

In the event the material is identified as narcotics or dangerous drugs, the parent will be warned of the probability of usage by the child and can arrange through his physician for any indicated medical assistance or through other agencies for appropriate social services.
