

Game Director Urges Caution With Firearms

There isn't a duck or pheasant that flies, or the biggest trophy head in existence, that is worth endangering the life of a hunting companion.

John McKean, state game director, made this statement as he urged hunters to be careful with firearms during the big game, upland game bird and waterfowl seasons getting underway.

McKean voiced his concern over 11 nonfatal firearms hunting accidents which have already occurred this year, 8 of which involved juveniles.

All of the accidents except one have been the direct result of careless handling of firearms. The lone exception involved the wounding of an individual in line of fire with neither the victim nor the shooter knowing of the other's presence.

McKean aimed some of his remarks at parents who allow youngsters to hunt without supervision or without adequate training in the safe handling of firearms. One juvenile shot himself while illegally hunting quail on his parents' property. Another accident involved youngsters hunting rabbits with the parents' permission but without adult supervision.

Law Requires Hunter Certificate

Oregon law requires that juveniles less than 18 years of age must possess a hunter safety certificate to hunt on lands other than their own or those of a parent or guardian. Juveniles under 14 years of age must be accompanied by adults, and youngsters under 12 may not hunt big game.

Official reports of investigating officers indicate accidents occurred because of some infraction of the basic rules of firearms safety. One accident happened because the victim thought the weapon was unloaded. One youngster almost lost a hand while he was dragging his loaded firearm through the brush by the muzzle. Several accidents occurred while firearms were being loaded or unloaded. Four accidents involved pistols, six involved .22 caliber rifles, and one involved a shotgun. Eight of the hunters shot themselves, and three shot other persons.

The game director urges all hunters to be careful and to follow explicitly the ten commandments of firearms safety. A long hunting season is ahead.

Pants Workshop Slated to Start

By BIRDINE TULLIS
Extension Aide

All women interested in taking the "Sewing Pants for Women" workshops, to be conducted this fall by OSU Extension Service, should call the County Extension office, 676-9642, by October 15. Area workshops will commence in October and should be completed before Thanksgiving.

Each participant will attend five workshop sessions and will construct a pair of woven wool slacks. There is no charge to enroll. The only cost to participants is for pattern, fabric and findings used to make her slacks.

Program Packets

Nine new packets for use of women's clubs have been added to the list of available "program packets" this year. Program packets are available from OSU at your local extension office, most at no charge. Some packets, complete with slides have a small charge for use. They are complete programs designed to cover a wide variety of timely subjects of interest to women.

4-H News Release

All 4-H members and leaders are reminded that next week, October 5-11 is 4-H Club Week. This is the time that all America points with pride to the activities of the 4-H clubs.

Clubs should plan for some special activity for this week to call attention to the many and varied phases of 4-H.

This is an ideal time to reorganize 4-H clubs and recruit new members. Leaders—call the extension office, 676-9642, for special help for 4-H Week.

Four-H knitting leaders are reminded of the special training session for knitting club leaders to be held in Hermiston October 9 at the Civic Recreation Center from 9:30 to 3:00 p.m. Training will be given by Mrs. Orval Kloock of Troutdale. She will present a complete program including "special problems".

State Clerks Office Goes to Mrs. Parrish

Mrs. Sadie Parrish, Morrow county clerk, was elected to the office of first vice-president of the state organization of Clerks and Records at the annual convention held in Thursday and Friday at Baker.

During the past year she has served as second vice-president of the organization.

Oregon Hunters Poised for Buck Season Opening

am, Umatilla, and Walla Walla are also good choices.

In the southeast, Beulah, Malheur River, Owyhee, Steens Mountain, and Warner all look good. Hunters will find some big bucks all through the rim-rock and juniper country. Some nice bucks will also be found in the Whitehorse area. Fort Rock, Silver Lake, and Silvies units are expected fair but are not expected to be the top producers hunters found last fall.

These are just a few of the better buck hunting areas the Game Commission recommends. There are many more areas to choose from. Individual hunter success will depend on how well he knows the habits of deer and how well he knows the country he is hunting.
