Oregon Camping Season Closes

Overnight campgrounds in Oregon State Parks closed for the 1969 season on Sunday, November 2, after another extremely successful season, it was announced by Forrest Cooper, state highway engineer.

As usual, five overnight campgrounds along the Oregon coast will remain open throughout the year. These are Fort Stevens, Cape Lookout, Beverly Beach, Jessie M. Honeyman, and Harris Beach. Generally the State Parks are never closed to the public for day use, which means that picnic facilities will be available, although in some areas drinking water and electric stoves may not be operable. In higher elevations, snow and freezing weather close access to some areas or require draining water systems and closing rest rooms. In the valley, coastal, and low-altitude areas, this disruption of service may be only for short periods of time.

Although final attendance figures are not yet available for this season, indications are that they will be above last year's, when almost 20,800,000 visited the parks.

The overnight campgrounds which are closed for the winter will reopen for the 1970 season in May.

OSU Homecoming Set November 15

Plans are fast developing for Oregon State's annual Homecoming Celebration November 15 when the Beavers face Washington State, according to Sue Phelps, Homecoming assistant chairman.

In preparation for the Saturday afternoon football contest the entire campus will be bustling with the return of graduates and current students constructing house signs, noise parade gimmicks and a gigantic bonfire.

The Homecoming week-end will be taken up with a myriad of activities for alumni and students. Kicking off a week-end of spirit-boosting and fun will be the November 14 noise parade, football rally and Rook bonfire, where the traditional Freshman Class lids and ribbons are burned to signify their initiation into campus life.

Saturday, November 15, alumni will be hosted at the annual barbecue and a post game coffee-doughnut jamboree. A concert featuring Mason Williams and Jennifer Warren is planned for the same evening.

Homecoming spirit buttons will be available early at local Chamber of Commerce outlets throughout the state.

Portland alumni should be on a special lookout for the Portland tour delegation of the Homecoming queen and her court, along with the rally squad on November 12-13. The group will make a special invitation to Portland area alumni as guests at a Meier & Frank luncheon, Beaver Huddle and as they tour the Portland Shriners Hospital.

Employment Law Prohibits Sex Discrimination

Oregon's women gained equal economic opportunity with men when measures enacted by the recent session of the Legislature went into effect last month.

The action of the Legislature amended the state's progressive Civil Rights statutes to prohibit discrimination because of sex in employment and admittance to trade schools and unions. The Civil Rights statutes previously outlawed discrimination in these areas because of race, creed, color or religion.

The Legislature has placed the responsibility of enforcement of these statutes upon the Oregon Bureau of Labor. Norman O. Nilsen, the State Labor Commissioner, commented:

"Today, Oregon joins the ranks of those states which have recognized that barriers to equal employment because of one's sex do exist and must be eliminated. Oregon's new Civil Rights statute goes into effect and for the first time our state law will prohibit discrimination in employment because of sex.

"It is in the Oregon tradition to be in the forefront. Since the early 1900s our own State Bureau of Labor has worked for the social and economic progress of the people of Oregon.

"Over the years, we have seen many changes and we are proud that the Bureau has had a part in making these changes which keep us with the times and not behind them.

"Only 16 states and the District of Columbia have laws prohibiting such discrimination in employment. We are pleased that Oregon is among that pioneering group which recognizes that women, as well as the traditional minority groups have not been given an equal chance in the world of work.

"In the overwhelming majority of instances, those denied or limited in their economic rights and freedom because of discrimination based on sex are women who are employed or seeking employment. The experience of other states, the federal Equal Opportunity Commission and our own Bureau of Labor studies indicate that this is the case.

"Many people worked hard to see this law enacted. All of us who sought its passage believe that the time is now to expand the concept of the individual's right to equal employment opportunity.

"It will be the Bureau's responsibility to enforce the law and to carry on an educational program seeking to eliminate sex discrimination. Thus, this law will be added to the duties we have fulfilled since 1949 in combating discrimination based on
