HEHISCH in TB Press Project

The Dec. 19 issue of HEHISCH is their issue which will be entered in the 33rd Annual School Press Project promoted in the seven-county Eastern Region of Oregon Tuberculosis and Respiratory Association.

This year the journalism students were asked, without any previous warning what TB or "respiratory disease" meant to them.

Their issue shows their research into the five topics for competition: 1. Youth in the Fight Against Tuberculosis. 2. How Students can Work for clean air, healthier lungs. 3. Youth Against the Cigarette Habit. 4. Youth Fights Disease by fighting poverty. 5. Students Look Ahead to Health Careers. With each they have drawn a cigarette talking with such remarks as "Just because smoke pollutes the air doesn't mean that smoking will pollute your body". Rachel Dick is HEHISCH advisor.

The School Press Project is co-sponsored by the Columbia Scholastic Press Association and National Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association and is sanctioned by the National Ass'n. of Secondary School principals.
