Hats Off to the High Schoolers

A great deal of news in the past several years concerns young people who are rioting, burning down buildings, looting or otherwise raising general hell with things.

Reading news of those happenings just makes us gnash our teeth and almost brings tears of frustration. But then comes a sort of pleasant word from the high school that erases all these sad feelings. The high school student body is putting forth a splendid effort to raise a thousand dollars for the Peace Corps to build a school in a foreign country.

What do they want to do this for? In a few words they put it this way — "We have so much — they have nothing."

TO THE EDITOR...

Sir: I feel it is time that someone in Morrow County spoke out about our air pollution problem. We have set on the sidelines too long. Our capacity for shortsightedness is showing again.

We of Morrow County may think that we have an inexhaustible supply of fresh air. Unfortunately we have no such thing. Now is the time to curb our air pollution problems.

At present the only industrial problems are sawmills and they will probably solve them in the near future.

Another and more serious problem is that of private vehicles. These vehicles account for sixty some percent of air pollution in the United States. In Morrow County it seems hardly noticeable, but it is there. And it is all the more dangerous because it is not immediately tangible. The only idea that comes to mind is that of once again writing Senators or Representatives and asking them to pass legislation that would regulate us. These laws would have to have full voter support even if their passage meant heavier taxes. After all, which is better, to live in a slightly humbler fashion or die rich and quick? The choice belongs to you and I. Make the most of a chance to stop air pollution now.

Sincerely,
Rob

Dear Editors: My, what a working out the Gazette-Times gets that come to Terwilliger Plaza. Mrs. A. H. Nelson and Mrs. Anne Smouse each take it. It is passed on to Hortense Martin who reads it and then gives it to me. I in turn read it from cover to cover, ads also, just to keep up on the news. Then I cut up the papers, mailing the tid bits to Ellis Thomson in New York City and to Tom Farrell, formerly of Camp Heppner and now of Old Saybrook, Conn. They in turn enjoy them no end and comment on them.

So not a morsel is wasted. Elsie Fox, formerly Elsie Cowins of Heppner, takes the paper and reads the "Letter" about former acquaintances and writes me as a result. She is now living in Wenatchee, Wash.

Dan McArdle, formerly of Camp Heppner, and now a policeman in Holyoke, Mass., takes the paper and follows every word.

Not to be outdone, one of the local Heppner bankers writes: "Enjoy your letters to the Editor. Seems like old times: 'I cover the waterfront' in 'Seen along life's Highway.' (Shades of the old column in the Pendleton East Oregonian).

Very truly yours,

Gentlemen:

Josephine Mahoney was showing me your Jan. 15, 1970 copy of your paper. In there was a picture of the 7th and 8th grade. I am enclosing fifty cents. Please send me as many copies as this half buck will buy. Keeping in mind that not long ago this half buck would have been worth three half bucks. So living in the past, even at fifty cents each, I should get three pictures. If there is any question about this please ask Dr. McMurdo or Frank Turner, they are both old enough to know what this is all about.

Sincerely yours,
Miles F. Potter

Dear Editors:

About that mysterious picture! I wonder how it got in the school room wall in the first place—that, to me, is the real mystery. There was only one person in the picture I could readily identify; Samuel E. Notson, the county school superintendent at that time. Later I recognized Mr. Copeland of the Hardman school. Since it has been determined the photograph was taken in 1913 that would exclude Professor Reid, since he left the Heppner school system in 1909 and retired to Portland. Hamilton H. Hoffman came the following year (1910) and was superintendent of schools in the year the institute picture was taken. He is not in this picture.

I have long advocated the immediate identification of all persons in a group picture by number, before all memories grow cold. It is a shame that some of the Morrow County early pioneer group pictures can be identified only in part. I would say to one and all, bring out your group pictures and properly identify the individuals while you can still remember who they are. It may be very important 50 years hence.

Sincerely,
Art Crawford

REMEMBER THIS? REMINISCE!

THIRTY-FIVE YEARS AGO February 7, 1935

The county court Monday received the written resignation of Gay M. Anderson, county clerk, effective February 16. Members of the court last night announced a successor would be appointed Saturday. The clerk's resignation followed trial on a charge of larceny of public monies, of which he was acquitted, returning of $3,802.42 to the county shown by audit of Wells & DeLapp of which $1,702.42 was recovered from National Surety Corporation, the clerk's sureties, and cancellation of the clerk's bond.

The 1935 meeting of the Morrow County Lamb and Wool Growers association was held at the Elks Temple on January 31, with the following men being elected as officers for the ensuing year: R. I. Thompson, president; H. A. Cohn, vice-president; Joseph Belanger, secretary and Frank Wilkinson, William Hynd and Bill Kilkenny, directors.

Dr. J. M. Shaw, veterinary at Corvallis, talked on the subject of sheep diseases. E. R. Jackman, extension specialist in crops, gave a lantern slide talk on forage plants and their adaptation to range conditions in this area.

Speed Does It

As progress is made in the development of our highway system, changes come to the economy of roadside towns and communities. Some are improved, others are dislocated. Every improvement of the freeway between Boise and Portland that cuts the driving time an hour reduces the dependence of the traveler on roadside service to that extent. When it took three days to drive from the John Day county to Pendleton, Ukiah was a prosperous town, Albee still existed, and stopping places along the road to serve the teamsters were numerous. Now, it takes 90 minutes to make the trip, and those services are no longer needed. As the driving time is shortened, the towns along the freeway will experience the same to some extent. The answer to the problem is increased travel.

CHUCK WAGON

Turner, Van Marter and Bryant can hardly be called gypsies, moving just next door! A feller might think there was almost nothing to move but some old insurance policies. Not so. They had a whale of a heavy safe to move — about 1800 pounds. Nothing in it but it was vital to their office. Like most offices, it is used to pile stuff on in which there isn't any other place on which to pile it. (Five or six friends came in and helped move it, and another five or six of us engineers stood around and gave advice.)

In our snooping around we discovered that Frank Turner was once a shepherd. (My wife, Dorothy, has had a lifetime ambition to be a sheepherder.) Anyhow, as a young man Frank was invited to enter a sheepshearing contest up in Montana. He explained that he was just learning and would like to wait a year before entering contests. The people insisted he enter it anyway. So, in spite of an Australian's brag and other's claimed expertise, Frank beat all comers.

Orville Cutsforth accidentally lost a sizeable amount of cash on his way to lodge Thursday evening. He didn't know it was missing until he went to buy a ticket and discovered the money was gone. This was pretty serious as this cash was to be vacation money to be used on a trip the Cutsfords were taking with the Phil Mahoneys to the South Pacific, to Australia and New Zealand. Orville mentioned his loss and pretty soon Ralph Marlatt tossed him a neat little roll of bills. (Ralph had gone outside a moment to look and see if it was raining. Lo and behold, there was a pile of money practically in the doorway! Orville is very grateful and is joined by the rest of us who are mighty proud of Ralph.)

prophet at the court house, rises to remark that the groundhog, like lots of other things in this country, doesn't always run true to form.

Miss Ruth Nyland, Mr. and Mrs. Neil Knighten, Mr. and Mrs. William Massey and Miss Creth Craber motored to Monument from Hardman last Saturday for a dance that was held there that evening.

ONE LIVESTOCK

On Jan. 25, the Lone Livestock and Crops 4-H Club had a meeting at the Paul Tews home. We are going to raise money for paint to be used on some road signs. Each member is supposed to earn a dollar or more in any way they can.

John Ekstrom talked about our 4-H permanent records. Clay West talked about feed records and Richard and Stuart Keene each talked about the crops records.

We adjourned the meeting and had refreshments.

Pastor Arrives For Nazarene Church

Rev. Floyd Everhart, with his wife and family arrived in Heppner, Jan. 27, to pastor the local Church of the Nazarene, located on Gilmore St. They are living in the parsonage at 545 Pioneer Drive, just across from the hospital. Rev. Everhart began his ministry Sunday.

The Everharts have five of their eight children enrolled in the public schools and one preschooler at home. Their oldest son, Daniel, 19, is attending mid-America Nazarene College at Olathe, Kan. James, the second son is at the Naval Training Center at San Diego, Calif. The children at home are: Gary, 16, a junior in high school; Samuel, 12, a 7th grader; Pamela, 11, a 5th grader; Joylene, 8, in the 3rd grade; Gloria, 7, a 1st grader. Timothy at home is 4 years old.

Rev. Everhart was born and reared in Western Kansas. He attended Bethany Nazarene College at Bethany, Okla., to prepare for the ministry, graduating in 1950. He was ordained as an Elder in the Church of the Nazarene in 1952. He has been a pastor for twenty years, serving as a supply pastor for the past year while living at Nampa, Idaho.

Mrs. Everhart is a talented musician and children's worker.
