Tribute Paid to Linea T. Nottage

The Clackamas Grade Schools held a retirement banquet and party on the River Queen in Portland, on May 23, honoring Mrs. Linea (Troedson) Nottage. She is retiring June 8, after 40 years in the classroom. More than a hundred faculty and staff members were in attendance to celebrate the occasion and present her with some luggage for her retirement travels.

Linea had a teacher training course during her senior year at Ione High school, took the state teachers examination, attended a session of summer school, and was then issued an elementary teaching certificate. At the age of seventeen, she began her teaching career in a one-room school at Ella, about nine miles north of Ione, her home town. In the first of her two years at Ella, she had four grades, and four pupils, all boys. One of the little boys was her youngest brother. She taught one year in the Ione Grade School, and then went on to get her elementary degree at Oregon College of Education at Monmouth, graduating in 1927. She continued her education at Oregon State University at Corvallis, graduating in 1928 with her degree in Home Economics.

Linea's experience as a high school teacher began at Echo High school where she remained for four years. She taught one year at Ashland High school and then joined the Portland school system where she was in the home economics department at Girls Polytechnic High school for twenty-four years. In 1958, Mr. and Mrs. Nottage resigned from the Portland schools to lead a more leisurely life, spending a great deal of time in Eastern Oregon and taking several trips.

Linea responded to the call of school bells again in 1962 and returning to teaching. She substituted on the Elementary level in the David Douglas District, and Clackamas grade school where she was elected a permanent teacher. She remained there until she decided to retire. Mrs. Nottage plans to spend most of the summer just resting and enjoying the fresh air and sunshine at the ranch home of her brother, Carl Troedson, near Ione. Later she plans to do some traveling.
