Over The Tee Cup

By MARIE McQUARRIE

For golfers—or anyone—what could be more fun than playing nine holes, when the air is still a little warm, then walking back to the club house, following your nose to the aroma of just-right-for-cooking charcoal, with the scent of steaks intermingled in the air? I ask you—what could be more fun? Then to the club house for a cool drink of your choice, while your succulent meat is cooked rare, medium or well done—as you like it. Then a good dinner of salad, garlic bread, your tender charcoal flavored steak and a fattening but delicious dessert, also visiting and friendly banters to go along with. This is just how it was last Saturday evening at Willow Creek Country Club. The Alan Martins, Lowell Gribbles and Ed Hiemstras were hosts for the evening and they did an excellent job.

When the golf game was over, the men picked names of the gals out of a hat and their two scores were added together. Grib and Mrs. Grib came in low. Wouldn't you know he would pick his wife's name. Phil Mahoney pulled out Marie McQuarrie's name and they had a combined score for high. It has been said (don't really know who said it) if there is a prize for low and high score and you don't receive the low—better to get the high than no prize at all. Ray Massey won the golf ball for the low score for the men playing a foursome without women. Most of the ones there stayed until after dark, visiting and enjoying the cool air.

Our thanks are offered to Ed Hiemstra for putting up the slat draw shades on the west end of the porch to protect the ones sitting there from either the sun or wind. The gals purchased the shades and our president installed them. They are a pleasant addition to the porch, and do not cut out any of the view of our plush golf course.

An election was held for vice-president for the remainder of the year, to take Jack Simkins' place. Clinton McQuarrie was unanimously elected.

Tuesday, the day promising to be mighty warm, organization of play for the gals was nil. Some beat the heat by being down there around 7:30. Scattered were the players and not too many braved Old Man Sunshine. It really wasn't so bad as you might expect and the heat helped the old muscles to be limber. No prizes were given, as everyone left just as they finished and no real get-together was held after playing. Three Heppner girls traveled to Condon Wednesday, June 24 and Kinzua golfing gals were also invited. Karen Thompson, Vi Lanham and Hazel Mahoney represented the Willow Creek Country Club. From Heppner, Vi Lanham received the prize for long drive. The Kindergarten mothers served lunch for the group out at the Fairgrounds. The gals reported they had a good time and enjoyed their game of golf on the Condon course.

Coming Event — The Condon Golf Club has invited the men and women of Willow Creek Country Club for golf this coming Sunday, June 28, starting at 8:30 a.m.

JOINS THE MARINES

Phil Ayres, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Ayres and Darold Hams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Darold Hams, have joined the Marine Corps and are taking basic training at San Diego.

Another Marine, Rick Witherite arrived Monday on Okinawa. He had been stationed at Camp La June on the East coast. He visited here on a 96-hour pass last weekend. Okinawa is the jumping off place for Vietnam.
