Straight Talk

In one of the most down-to-earth discussions of the subject, Dr. Leonard Sagan, an authority on the environmental and medical aspects of nuclear energy, says the need for power is not the question. The question is how the energy is to be generated. He then lists the comparative advantages of hydroelectric generation, fossil fuels and the atom.

The atom, in his view, is far superior to the others and has come along at a critical time to meet the expanding energy needs of the country. So far as the risk of nuclear energy goes, he says, "There is no zero risk." If people 200 years ago had considered the risks of burning coal, the industrial revolution would never have come about in America. "It is my feeling," he added, "that the environment needs more technology. The solutions to the problems will come from improved technology." Dr. Sagan observes that there are risks with everything—cyclamates, yogurt, and the evening martini. A one-hour flight in an airplane exposes an individual to 40 times more radiation than he would receive living in a reactor area for a year.

As Dr. Sagan sees it, one of the biggest problems is that the news media have on many occasions not operated effectively. He observes that they have often concentrated on the sensational, expanded upon the claims of the eccentric, and failed to try to educate the public about nuclear energy. As has been pointed out by other authorities, nuclear energy is, in fact, part of the solution of the environmental problem that has inevitably accompanied soaring population growth.

Act Now on Behalf of POW's

Show your own thankfulness by writing a letter on behalf of U. S. prisoners of war and the missing in Southeast Asia, addressing it to the following:

Xuan Thuy
Delegation of the Democratic Republic of Vietnam
8, Avenue General Leclerc
94 Choisy-le-Roi
Paris, France
ASK FOR:

- Release of names of all Americans held—both prisoners of war and those missing in action
 - Humane treatment of all held
 - Release of all sick and disabled prisoners
- Here is a sample letter that can be copied and sent to Paris: Sir:

I appeal to you, your government and citizens on behalf of American prisoners you hold in Southeast Asia.

I urge that you immediately release the names of all prisoners of war; that you treat them according to the agreements of the Geneva Convention; and release those who are sick and disabled.

With millions of other Americans, I strongly feel there can be no peace settlement until such action is taken by your government.

Two Keys to McLaren

There's one thing for sure that Heppner High School students would have learned from the stolen car episodes that have taken place recently. TAKE YOUR CAR KEY WITH YOU. DON'T LEAVE IT IN THE CAR. It is a sound safety practice. While usually cars can be considered safe in Heppner, cars are going every day towards Pendleton, Hermiston, Portland. Then it's not only TAKE YOUR KEY but Lock the doors and put anything of value out of sight in the trunk of the car.

We Need More Traditions

Thanksgiving is a typically American holiday that provides an excellent opportunity to involve even the youngest children with a sense of family and national history.

Before the big day arrives read some stories or tell stories about the first Thanksgiving. Help the children to think about something each is thankful for each day.

Children can be involved in drawing pictures of the things they are thankful for. The refrigerator door makes a handy place to display these creations.

Share with the children some of your experiences as a child at Thanksgiving. Talks of family gatherings gives a sense of history and a sense of belonging to a larger family.

Involve the children in making special table decorations, in planning the menu, shopping, and preparing the food. Use the Thanksgiving season as a time to add new words to the vocabulary, to provide some interesting experiences and to develop an appreciation of all the things each person has to be thankful for.

Parents who capitalize on family events help build a positive philosophy of life in children. In this day and age with so much emphasis on the negative things in society, it is well to pay some special attention to the many good things to help children gain a balanced perspective.

Son: "Dad, what's an opera?"
Dad: "Son, that's where some guy gets stabbed in the back and instead of bleeding, he sings."

Gideon Speaker At Lex Sunday Eve

John Crow, Pendleton, will be a Gideon speaker at the combined evening services of the Lexington Church of Christ and the First Christian Church, Heppner, in the Lexington church house, Nov. 22, at 7:30 p.m.

Mr. Crow became a member of the Gideons, an international organization for Christian men and dedicated to the distribution of the Holy Bible, in about 1950 at Pendleton. Since that time he has done work for the Gideons in Eastern Oregon, including a Sunday afternoon gospel service once a month at the Umatilla County jail in Pendleton.

Mr. Crow was born on a ranch near Ione and lived there for several years before the family moved to Pendleton. His father L. F. Crow, ran a stationary harvesting outfit in the Ione area. The Crow family was living near Ione at the time of the 1903 Heppner flood. He says he can recall that his father went to Heppner to help the flood victims.
The pastor, Don W. Johnson, cordially invites the public to this interesting presentation of the work of the Gideons by Mr. Crow.

Pioneer Ponderings

By W. S. CAVERHILL
A PROSPEROUS FUTURE

For years we have been making informal surveys of the economic prospects of the small interior towns of Eastern Oregon. In our recent visit to Morrow, Gilliam, Wheeler and Crook counties. We gathered information about their problems and out look. In spite of little growth in population there are signs of stability and slow growth. We were especially impressed by the out look for Heppner. The people there are aware of their problems, and moving to meet them. As the population grows along the Columbia, the demand for the recreational areas south of Heppner will increase and they will be ready for it.

Dynamic Speaker Here for Harvest Dinner

The Bible School Department will be presenting the Thanksgiving program at the dinner, which is one of the biggest events of the year at the church. The dinner and the special offering which is taken are to be an expression of the thanks of the members and friends to God for His blessings throughout the year. Because the church feels that these expressions of thanks should be shared instead of kept selfishly to themselves, a tithe (10%) of the entire offering will be sent as a love gift to Martin Clark of the Osaka Bible Seminary in Osaka, Japan. He labored hard and with much love as the minister of the church here in the early 1940's, and for so many years on the mission field in Japan. Last year, over $200.00 was sent to Bro. Clark.

The various committees of the church have been hard at work to make this year's Festival even more of a success than last year's. Special invitations have been made and arrangements made to have in attendance many who have not been able to be at one of the Harvest Festival Dinners in the last few years.

The pastor, Don W. Johnson, states that the planning committee is anticipating in excess of 125 persons in attendance at the dinner.

Earl Ayres was recently taken to St. Anthony Hospital in Pendleton where he has had X-rays and is undergoing treatment.

TURKEY IS A GOOD PROTEIN BUY

If you can use a large bird, you'll find it costs less per pound than a small one. Large turkeys have more meat in proportion to bone. Have your meat man saw it in half—if your family is small. Freeze the other half.

Leftover cooked turkey meat may be frozen and stored for later use in a variety of ways.

When you buy a frozen turkey one day and cook it the next, the Poultry and Egg National Board recommends this method: Leave it in the original wrap and thaw under cold running water or water that is changed frequently. A 5 to 9 pound turkey thaws in three to four hours, but over nine pounds will take from four to seven hours.

Soil Men at Portland Meet

At their closing luncheon in Portland Friday, 200 Soil and Water Conservation District officials heard State Representative Stafford Hansell of Hermiston make a plea for involvement of Soil and Water Conservation Districts in the protection of Oregon's environment. Hansell pointed to the dwindling farm influence in the legislature, but on the positive side he cited environmental concerns as part of campaigns during the recent elections. Hansell predicted that environmental improvement would be one of five very tough issues facing legislators in the upcoming session.

The District Supervisors had "scooped" Hansell during their morning business session with passage of a resolution calling for the Planning Commissions to write erosion control treatment into development plans; encouraged the establishment of an outdoor education center in Oregon; called for increased research to find alternatives to present field burning practices;

Rubella Clinic To Be Held Next Month

"Rub Out Rubella" is the theme of an immunization program to be carried out in Morrow County early in December, to control a disease now recognized as a leading cause of birth defects.

Aimed at immunizing children from the age of 1 year through the 7th grade, the free shots will be offered in the elementary schools, with parents invited to bring in their preschool children to the school clinics.

Part of a state-wide effort to be carried out this coming fall and winter, the Rub Out Rubella program will be conducted by local health departments in cooperation with local Medical Societies and other health-associated groups.

Also known as "German measles" and "three-day" measles, rubella is generally a mild disease with children, but can cause women to deliver babies with serious defects when they contract the disease in the first three months of pregnancy.

The immunization campaign is aimed at preventing another epidemic of rubella such as the last serious outbreak in 1964-65, which nationally caused some 20,000 birth defects and from 20,000 to 30,000 stillbirths or spontaneous abortions.

The same epidemic in Oregon caused at least 120 rubella birth defects and 26 stillbirths.
