Officers Named for Methodist Church

At the March 27 meeting of the official board of the Heppner United Methodist Church, under the direction of their District Superintendent George Emerson, significant congregational matters were settled.

Rev. Emerson explained to the local United Methodist Church members attending, the format of a "new style" Annual Conference to be held in Salem next June. Many of the old and oft-repeated conference procedures will be benched in favor of a series of small group discussions during the four-day June meeting. Necessary business will be handled at the evening sessions with the learnings from the small groups being incorporated into the business sessions.

Rev. Edwin Cutting, pastor and Mrs. W. W. Weatherford, lay representative from Heppner, will attend the meeting beginning May 31 at Willamette University.

Several reports were given on the work of the church during the past year and the congregation was challenged to fill the needs of the people in the community.

How much a bushel?

You put in a lot of time and money working the soil and planting and fertilizing and keeping your equipment in shape. You get near perfect weather for good growth. In fact, everything is right for a bumper wheat crop.

But you don't get it. Instead, you end up with a lot of short, stunted, poor quality wheat: like the wheat with the hooked heads in this picture.

What went wrong?

You used 2,4-D. When you should have used a more selective herbicide.

Like Rhonox.

Rhonox not only kills everything that 2,4-D kills, but also knocks off weeds that 2,4-D can't touch.

And unlike 2,4-D, Rhonox won't murder your wheat while it's murdering those tough broadleaf weeds.

Which means that even though Rhonox costs a little more to start, in the end it costs you less.

Because with Rhonox, you're going to get a better quality wheat.

With higher bushel yields per acre.

And less dockage at the elevator.

And more profits with every harvest.

So go ahead, use Rhonox. Then sit back and watch your wheat grow Nice and healthy and tall and straight.
