Scouts Wage War On Local Litter

"Get Involved" and "Save the Environment" have fast become national slogans in an effort to inspire nationwide clean-up.

Boy Scout Troop No. 661 waged a successful campaign on the local level against litter. Working with 15 volunteer Scouts, Dan McBride, Troop Leader, organized a general clean-up of unsightly refuse within a 3-mile radius of the area.

The crew began at the tennis court Sunday morning, April 3 and worked out to Three-mile, returned to the city limits and cleaned their way to the golf course. When the "bounty" was delivered to the dump, another eye-sore was discovered and rectified as the Scouts gathered debris which had blown up of vehicles hauling trash.

Highway Cooperation

One contributing factor to the success of the project was the fine cooperation given by the Highway Department. A truck and driver, men-at-work signs, flagmen and litter bags were furnished. Ed Yeoman made a special point to arrange his work days in order to drive truck for the boys.

Mr. McBride expressed his satisfaction at the good turnout and the great job done by the boys. The eagerness and willingness of Howard Green, Mike Smith, Mike Sweek, Raymond Smith, Steve Malcom, Kyle Buschke, Brian Boner, Bob Eckman, Allen Burkenbine, Dave Allstott, Mark Piper, Curtis Sweek, Mike Buschke, Kelly Sager and Bruce Young paid off in visible dividends.

The environmental project was of the boys' own choosing and they plan to maintain the area as well as continue in other ways.

Wall Creek Project

May 14, 15 and 16 the Troop plans to join 250 other Eastern Oregon Scouts on Wall Creek. The time will be devoted to the clean-up of the Steelhead spawning grounds. This worthwhile project found favor with the local Scouts as their troop stresses a closeness to nature—by using it and preserving it.
