

WILLIAM HUSTON and Curtis Viall were impressed with Jim Ployhar's Nuclear De-Salting Plant.

HEARTS as natural pumps interested Ronnie Schwarz and Jody Marlatt. On display were a beef heart, turkey heart, chicken heart, a mouse heart and a cut-away view of a human heart. This was Tom Wolff's project.

Science Display Shows Greatness

(Our apologies to the 8th grade students who put on a tremendous show with their Science Fair, May 11. Graduation... the flood kept crowding them out)

The Science Fair was a fantastic display of students' talents. Their organization of material, the scientific process and recording if findings were all there to be examined. Their interests ran from Mouse traps to Robots. The Robot with his red heart pasted on the outside of his metal body and tape recorder ensconced on the inside was a favorite of the little boys and girls.

There were 100 plus exhibits. Every seventh grader had made a musical instrument in their study of sound and a D.N.A. molecule.

Each eighth grade student had the assignment of a 6-weeks science project. Each read and decided on his own project. A written report and drawing were submitted to the science teacher, Mrs. Dick Meador, for approval. From here on they were on their own, marking their own progress. A detailed report on the experiments was placed by each exhibit.

Over 800 attended the Science Fair which included all the students in the elementary grades. Mrs. Meador opened the building for science entries Saturday and Sunday and at 7 o'clock the morning of the Fair. Mrs. Don Bennett and Jack Loyd attended the Fair during the day.

Jack Loyd had a "circle" of friends frequently during the day as they held hands and passed the electric shock one to another from an old magneto from an old crank telephone.

lodge in Shobe Creek and they felt much greater channel work than planned would be needed there.

Earl Jones of Bend with the Soil Conservation Service said that after the 1969 flood on Shobe Creek, the SCS had started studies. He stated the Heppner Soil and Water Conservation District is prepared to work with the public to slow down the amount of flow. He spoke of diversion ditches, grass plantings and sodding done locally. And he added that considerable flow reductions can be expected.

Dave McLeod of the ASCS office in Heppner told of the Rural Environmental program, a cost-sharing program with farmers in which others may share the cost. He said they have a request in to headquarters for emergency funds for diversion ditches, sod waterways and other ACP ag conservation practices. He said he hopes to know whether this help will be forthcoming by the end of the week.

He said they have requested $20,000.

Mr. McLeod said they have permission from the largest landowner to do the Soil Conservation practices.

Al Lofstrand of the Small Business Administration explained that his department could operate here if there had been a disaster involving 25 homes or 5 businesses. Damage must be to buildings.

Lou Baxter of the Farm Home Administration explained they had four types of loans. Interest is 5-8% now.

They have housing disaster loans to rural residents in towns up to 10,000 population. They would not permit rebuilding on the same site where there had been 100% loss from a flood.

The FHA will also help small cities with water and sewer projects and in some cases have grants for as much as 50%.

For an individual, he must write them a request telling of his problems, how much he needs and why.

The American Red Cross is providing over $5,000 for the flash flood victims, it was reported. The Red Cross would like, if possible, to have requests for help in by June 18.

Ron Chase, Pendleton, of the Internal Revenue Service, said there would be a casualty loss deduction on the income tax form and offered booklets to show how to figure the loss. Local income tax people can help in this regard.

Gene Pierce, president of the Heppner-Morrow County Chamber of Commerce drew applause. He thanked everyone for coming and stated he felt that the people were not really seeking loans. What they wanted was assurance that the flood problem on Shobe Creek would be cured. Two damaging floods in two years is too much and some kind of action is wanted before residents invest in fixing up their homes.

Meeting lasted from 2 p.m. until about 5 p.m.
