

All Boardman Wires Go Underground

By MARY LEE MARLOW

BOARDMAN — Russell Dorran, manager of the Umatilla Electric Cooperative Association at Hermiston, was present at the meeting of the Boardman City Council last Tuesday evening and discussed the possibility of putting all existing wires above ground in the city under ground. Most of the lead in wires are already underground, and the city would like to have the main feeder lines under also. Most of them are on poles now. Dorran told the council the co-op would study the situation and come to a decision later.

Supreme Court Gives Different Slant to Juvenile Departments

Judge Harlow Lennon, Multnomah County reviewed the recent state legislation and discussed its impact on Juvenile Courts at a recent Juvenile Court Judges association Summer Institute in Monmouth. Grace Drake, Morrow County's Juvenile Department director attended.

Judge Edward Leavy, Lane County, gave the keynote address. He brought up for question some Juvenile Court procedures which the Supreme Court has ruled on and told the group that value judgments would have to be made if the right of due process were to be the upper most goal of Juvenile Courts.

Mrs. Drake said the Juvenile Court was established as a service agency to help children in trouble. The recent Supreme Court decisions have emphasized the child's rights as an individual. If the goal is his rights as an adult in due process, rather than services, the people in Juvenile Court will have to make some value judgments as to whether present policies should continue. Otherwise a Juvenile Court will only be a legal machine.

On Friday the group saw the presentation and demonstration of several Therapy and Group process theories to help youth in the development of health and personal relations.

While Mrs. Drake attended the meeting Rick and Gwen went to Corvallis to visit their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Drake, Jr.
