

Teen Leader Program Starts Second Year

Young people who say they want "a piece of the action" can have it through the 4-H Teen Leader Program.

This program puts the teenager in the role of a teacher and gives him the responsibility for guiding younger boys and girls through a 4-H project, reports Don Stangel, Morrow County 4-H Extension Agent.

The Teen Leader Program is the newest step in 4-H leadership development activities. For years, Oregon has used older 4-H members as junior leaders actively assisting adult leaders. Now these members can be leaders on their own with an adult counselor and the county extension agent standing by ready to assist if needed.

Classes were held during 4-H Summer School at OSU; summer on Teen Leadership, Kathleen Bartlett, Shauna Bergstrom and Kelley Wolff attended the special session.

A sincere interest and time to participate in meetings and training sessions are all that is needed to be a teen leader.

Additional information about the Teen Leader program can be obtained from Don at the Extension Office in Heppner.

IRRIGON NEWS

Some 40 relatives gathered at the Daniel Creamer home for a family dinner following the funeral of his father, Auther Creamer, Sept. 23.

Among those from out of town who were here for the graveside services were his daughter, Sandra Nuxall, of Richland, Wash., his sons James and Ron of Ogden, Utah, his brothers Alfred of Ogden, Charles of Boise, Idaho, John of Liberty, Utah; sister, Mrs. Gladys Harrison, Sunset, Utah. Mr. and Mrs. Mike Hinkley and their son Gerald of Ontario, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bourne and June Farley of Ogden, Utah, who are relatives of Mrs. Creamer, who lives at the home here in Irrigon.

Louis Rood of Westfir visited here recently with his brother and family, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Rood and Deedee and Mrs. Mattie Rood who is in the Nursing Home.

Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Ledgerwood of Warrenton visited for a weekend recently with Mr. and Mrs. Don Munkers. This was their first visit to Heppner in 11 years. They are Mrs. Munkers' uncle and aunt.

Now is the time to get 9-19 year olds enrolled in 4-H. Leaders are needed for many projects. 4-H has a project for every interest.

Pride . . . 4-H'ers Have It

Oregon 4-H members, long-known for "making the best better" are adding a new dimension to their slogan this year in the 4-H Community Pride program, reports Don Stangel, Morrow County 4-H Extension Agent.

The Community Pride projects will be something the members decide on themselves. They may be small in scope and something the young people can do themselves with little or no outside help, or be large and require most of the community to get involved. Don explains that 4-H'ers working on the flood cleanup was a good example of a pride project. No matter what the project, the aim is to make the community a better place in which to live.

While community beautification and conservation is the main thrust of Community Pride, it is also seen as a way for young people to learn, in a practical way, how to analyze needs and determine how to meet them. Organizing and working with other groups in the community is an important part of this learning experience.

Additional details about the program may be obtained from Don Stangel, Morrow Extension Agent, at the office in Heppner.

CLAUDE BUSCHKE drove this mammoth thing in the parade for Morrow County Grain Growers. He says "It comes with a lawn mower attachment".

ANOTHER PARADE SHOT: This one is a shot of the Christian Church float in the 1971 Fair Parade "Typically Western". Typical of early days the worship service was held in an outdoor church under a frame covered with tree branches.

Gontys See Styles, Enjoy Visiting

Attending the Spring Shoe Show at the Olympic Hotel in Seattle and visiting with family and friends kept Mr. and Mrs. Ed Gonty busy last weekend. Mrs. Neva Matteson helped make this trip possible by minding the store in their absence.

Long, Slit Skirts
Mrs. Gonty reports that they saw many women wearing long skirts with high front slits and often wearing high boots. She says shoe styles are not changing drastically — the chunky look is still good.

Washington Visits
At Edmonds, Wn., they visited Mr. Gonty's brother Tom and his family. In Seattle they spent Sunday night with their son Ray. Coming home they visited with Eleanor's brother, Charles Hemrich, and family at Longview, and with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Voss near Vancouver.

Morrow County had 89 volunteer 4-H leaders in 1970-71 year. Morrow County 4-H members carried a total of 792 projects in that period.

Where Action is . . . That's Where You Find Empire Builders'

The Morrow County 4-H Empire Builders have been an active group for several years in the Ione-Lexington-Heppner area. This year they hope to widen their interests and enlarge membership to include even more high school age youth.

Heading up the group for the 1971-72 year are Cheri Carlson, President; Kelley Wolff, vice-president; Anita Davidson, secretary; Melissa McElligott, treasurer, and Shauna Bergstrom, sergeant-at-arms.

The past summer Empire Builders hosted a group of 15 high school boys and girls from Denver, Colo., on a week's exchange visit to Morrow County. This year the group hopes to earn enough money to take their Morrow County group to Denver in return.

The 4-H Empire Builders are always willing and ready to aid civic groups on community projects. Annually they honor all county 4-H leaders by planning, preparing and serving a banquet in their honor. Last year they helped collect funds for Red Cross and "came to town" to assist in flood cleanup after the disastrous flood in Heppner.

Empire Builders members are always represented at 4-H camp as counselors. They also do things together just for fun and recreation.

All high school students at county high schools are invited to join the action crowd and enroll as a 4-H Empire Builder—contact any of the before mentioned club officers for date of their meetings!

Extension Service people here for deer hunting last week were Duane Johnson, State 4-H youth specialist and Fremont Sprouls.

Tim Tullis was here from Eastern Oregon College last weekend to see his folks and get in some deer hunting.
