CHUCK WAGON

The Roy Wrights brought in a big page article sent them by Mr. and Mrs. Doc Babb. The Babb's recently went back to spend the winter in Arizona. En route they saw the reconstructed London Bridge that is now located on a site at Lake Havasu City. The article was full of pictures showing the ancient, venerable and magnificent bridge, as well as photos of a great many of the retinue of famous people who attended what was called "Arizona's greatest party". The party was attended by about 800 and among the many guests were Sir Peter Studd and Lady Studd, Sir Peter is the 688th Lord Mayor of London.

Governor Jack Williams was there, too, as a guest of Robert P. McCulloch who founded the city of Lake Havasu. The bridge is 2000 years old and is composed of 10,000 tons of granite, moved to Arizona from London piece by piece.

Many movie stars and other celebrities attended the big dinner and bridge dedication.

You probably have heard of leprechauns all your life. Now, you can actually see 'em, or reasonable facsimiles in both the display windows at Peterson's Jewelry here.

Sunday started out with a kind of thud. Dot — by some superhuman effort—got this ole guy outta the sack and he got into the car before he knew what hit him. Not sure whether it was some kind of honor or a threat but we had a police escort down to church. When Dot called this to my attention, it almost awakened me. Not quite. In church, cuffs and things needed buttoning. Great goodness, even my shoes were untied! (My apologies to all).

If you still think gun registration is necessary, please read this: Al Ullman's bill to repeal federal registration on .22 rifle ammo was approved by the Ways & Means committee. As four and a third billion rounds of the ammo are sold by more than 150,000 dealers, it is impossible to trace the ammo from manufacture or sale to actual use. Deputy Attorney General Dick Kleindienst said his department has not received a single case from the Treasury Dept. for prosecution resulting from ammunition records. The Justice Dept. said the voluminous records of .22 caliber ammunition sales are virtually worthless from a law enforcement viewpoint.

Rep. Ullman says the law has only served to hinder and harass law-abiding citizens who enjoy hunting and other outdoor sports.

We were at an editorial meeting last weekend in Portland. A panel of young Portland State men and women questioned the visiting professionals closely in a reverse press conference. They have a different view as to the function of a woman's page. Rather than recipes, club news, etc., they want to know what women are doing about pollution and other such active things. On the editorial page, they would urge change of all kinds. They were very alert and deadly in earnest. The thing that worried me was the lack of humor or smiles. Except for a wisp or two when humorous Journal City Editor Ed O'Meara was talking, the young folks really were dead serious in their interesting comments and questions. It made me feel so sorry for these young people who've known nothing but war and troubles of many many kinds. As Gene Pierce mentioned Monday, living now rather than 50 years ago or 50 years hence, we may have seen the very best of it. So we can remember fondly our childhood in small towns and on ranches when "we never had it so good."

Mrs. Bruce Bothwell and her brother J. G. Cowan have really enjoyed visiting with their sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Lieuallen, Sr., Salem, and friends Mr. and Mrs. Mitch Whipple, Eugene. The two couples were guests at the Bothwells last week. The men and Mrs. Whipple hunted most of the time. They got one small deer. The two sisters and their brother got almost caught up with their visiting.

HOME EXTENSION NEWS

"HOW TO VOTE" will be the topic for all Home Extension study groups in Morrow county area in November. Leader-teachers who will present the lesson to study groups will receive training as follows: Tuesday, Oct. 26, at the Courthouse, Heppner. Lessons will start with a 9:30 get acquainted coffee, and the lesson will be held from 10-12 noon.

Morrow County Clerk Sadie Parrish will present the lesson. The purpose of the lesson is to point out the correct way to mark a ballot. It was brought to the attention of the program development committee that many otherwise informed citizens do not really know how to mark a ballot properly. Many are unaware of the multitude of things that cause a ballot to be invalid, and thus thrown out and not counted. The duty and privilege of voting will also be discussed.

Any organized women's group is invited to send a leader to take this training, and in turn teach the lesson to her organization. Leaders do not have to be enrolled Home Extension members.

WILD GAME COOKERY and game care bulletins are available free of charge at all county Extension offices. Homemakers wondering what to do with venison, elk, fish and wild fowl brought in by family hunters will want to secure the following bulletins:

EB 790—Game Foods.

EB 800—Treats with Venison.

EB 819—Boning Out Your Deer.

The ceremony was performed by Mr. Green and by Rev. Wayne Gauge of the Glead Valley church.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a gown of old fashioned design in lace over taffeta and carried a cascade arrangement of blue and white roses with pale blue and dark blue ribbon. Her elbow length veil was held in place with a petal arrangement of net and seed pearls.

Mrs. Greg Berg of Kinzua was matron of honor for her sister and wore an empire style gown of royal blue satin with blue bows throughout her hair. She carried three light blue roses. Bridesmaids were Miss Vicki and Miss Kathy Green, sisters of the bride and Mrs. Gary Anderson who wore baby blue satin, styled like the matron of honor and with bows in their hair with each carrying two dark blue roses.

Mrs. Green, the bride's mother chose to wear navy blue and white with the groom's mother wearing a blue suit and white rosebud corsages.

A reception was held immediately after the service where a four tiered wedding cake in the bride's colors of two shades of blue and white centered the serving table. After the young couple cut and shared the first slice of the cake it was cut and served by Mrs. Jerry Johnson and Mrs. Herb Strouss. Coffee was poured by Joyce Grey with Mrs. Gary Tilley serving the punch. The guest book was in charge of Mrs. Ben Hawes with Mrs. Don Johnson and Mrs. Jack Brock in charge of the gift table.

Dave Green Files For Rep. from Dist. No. 32

Dave Green, 36, Madras Insurance Broker said Monday that he had picked Oct. 21, as the day on which to file for the Republican nomination for the state legislature for District No. 32, which includes Morrow County. The 32nd District embraces four complete counties, Jefferson, Sherman, Gilliam and Morrow, plus the southern part of Wasco County, the Eastern portions of Linn, Clackamas, and Marion Counties, giving it the most counties and parts of counties of any district in the state.

According to Mr. Green, the big district is united by the fact that agriculture and lumbering form the backbone of the economy.

The Madras man said he feels he can be a particularly effective voice for agriculture, having for the first twelve years of his married life operated a Jefferson County farm.

All About Horses

BY DWIGHT STEWART

Sidney Cowles—Grand Island, Nebraska asks . . . I have a yearling colt I want to train myself. He is always biting me and I can't make him stop. Would gelding him help? How old should he be when he is gelded?

All stud colts seem to bite and even some fillies will do the same. As they get older they stop biting with proper discipline. There is only one reason for keeping a stallion. If you want a pleasure horse and expect to train him yourself, you should have your colt gelded. There are only a few women who can handle stallions successfully. He can be gelded any time after he is a year old and the younger he is the better.

Hazel Newton of Terre Haute, Indiana writes . . . I don't understand what is meant by a horse's leads. How can I tell which lead he is on?

The expression "the lead" comes from the fact that horses, like all four-footed animals, do not lope straight. The horse lopes on a diagonal; his hind-quarters do not follow directly behind his fore-quarters. For instance, watch a dog! If a horse is loping with his hind-quarters to the left, his left shoulder should lead his right, his left hip leads his right, and if you are on him your left hip leads your right. The horse is on the left lead. You can tell which lead your horse is on by looking at the point of his shoulder, or your feet, or by the feel, as you become more advanced at riding. Remember, a horse never lopes with his hind feet side by side; one is always ahead of the other. The one ahead is called the leading foot.

She says only about twice in the 51 years she has experienced "dust area" housekeeping has the accumulation in the house been as bad as it is now.
