Harvard Editor Visits in County
Miss Celia Currin flew home to Eastern Oregon from her graduate studies at Harvard University for Christmas visits with her family and many friends. Celia is the first woman editor of the significant "Harvard Business Review" Sunday and Monday Celia visited with her dad Bob Currin, brother John, and other family members at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Currin on little Butter Creek.

Celia, who is well known in journalistic circles, is a graduate of the University of Oregon. She was employed by the Pendleton East Oregonian while still a student at Pendleton High School and returned to work on that paper each summer during her college years. The E. O. gave Celia a tuition scholarship to the U. of O. Two years ago she spent the winter studying in England.

Celia was selected to edit the Harvard Review after competitive interviews and after her credentials and references were carefully checked.

The choice of a woman editor came as a surprise to most sons of Harvard (which has not been co-educational for long). However, Celia's choice is a joyful badge of success to supporters of Woman's Lib. She was awarded a substantial fellowship along with this substantial responsibility.

Asked about future plans, Celia says that after a summer's work experience on the east coast, she will attend Columbia University's School of Journalism in New York for nine months next year. She then hopes to make a career for herself in publishing. Seems like she might have a good start, doesn't it?

Jeane Lovgren underwent major surgery Dec. 29 at Pendleton Community Hospital.

Heating's no problem for him

Ever wish you were fur-bearing come winter when your home is drafty-cold?

Modern electric heating assures sunshine comfort for your family even on the coldest days.

Electric heating gives you smooth, even heat in every corner of every room.

It's cleaner, too—no soot, dirt or grease.

It's economical — electricity uses all its energy in heating. Individual room temperature control means you heat only those rooms you use—no heat is wasted.

Electric heat is practical—no flues, pilot lights or valves to inspect or clean.

And you get more room—there are no radiators or furnaces to take up valuable living space.

Changing to modern electric heat is a low-cost, simple matter. Get professional advice today from your rural electric system.
