

US Wheat Growers Hopefully Nurture Indian Markets

Madame Ghandi is hoping for self-sufficiency in wheat for India but the millers like a blend of 60% American red wheat blended with 40% Indian wheat that is a Mexican type wheat for a good flour for baking.

Milton Morgan told the Heppner-Morrow County Chamber of Commerce this and other information learned on his recent Western Wheat Association tour to India.

Western Associates have furthered the use of wheat flour in India with the establishment of a Bakery School in a Veterinary College at New Delhi. If they are allowed to stay in India, they expect to establish another Bakery School soon.

Also on the staff is a young native girl, an American trained Home Economist. She travels about the town in a Western Wheat Associates special van to give baking demonstrations. She uses, as do the natives, a coke burner oven.

When the team first arrived in New Delhi, they attended a 3-day seminar similar to one that might be put on by GSU or WSU.

They discussed problems similar to those here which included rust and storage problems. They want to improve quality and they have high expectations.

Production Increases
A few years ago their production was 9.8 bushels per acre and in 1971 it was over 20 bushels per acre. Production has consistently increased. In 1951 India produced 6 1/2 metric ton of wheat and in 1971, they had 21 million metric ton. To figure this in bushels Milt said, "multiply by 37."

In spite of their increased production of wheat, India's imports from the United States are much greater than the exports. He said "India exported last year to the United States $298 million and imported $463 million."

India spends lots of money in research and development. Irrigation is coming more and more into use. Where they irrigate, they may have four crops a year.

In 1947, 1% of the people had electricity, now 16% have it. Many farms have electricity only to their irrigation pumps. Mechanical equipment may be seen in only one province. All areas use hand labor and the primitive plow drawn by a bullock.

People Are Happy Go-Lucky
He showed pictures of the part of India they were allowed to visit which didn't include Calcutta where they were having an outbreak of cholera. In the fields, villages, in the market places, he said the people were happy-go-lucky. They were never in a hurry.

The women washed on the rocks at the edge of the muddy rivers and spread them on the bank to dry. He was constantly amazed how white their clothes were.

He showed a shot of a "Stop sign" which read, "Halt & Proceed". Main Road Ahead.

He showed pictures of storage bins. With most of the farms having only 2 acres of ground, large bins are not needed.

His last shots were of the beautiful Taj Mahal.

Appointments
Mr. Morgan knows wheat. He is past president of the Oregon Wheat League, chairman of the Oregon Wheat Committee and is on the board of directors of the Western Wheat Associates.

Committee Appointments
Committee appointment sheets were distributed to members of the board of directors. President Ed Dick said he would call for a meeting on Wednesday or Friday to discuss the appointments. Ed Dick won the pot.

Guests were Burl Carlson and Doug Brewer. Harold Kerr had Long Range Planning Reports ready for distribution.

FARMERS, ATTENTION!
Delay in Report Of Payments
A report of payments to producers is made each year prior to income tax filing date. This year some difficulty in obtaining printed forms has caused about half of the reports to be late.

It is expected that the remainder of the forms will be printed and distributed to producers by Feb. 11, 1972.

Some of the reports already received are illegible. Farmers can contact the county ASCS office for clarification of statements that are not legible.

PATTI LOTT and her doxie dog, Daisy, performing at the amateur night Talent Show.

Talent Show Pleases Family-type Viewers

The amateur night talent show in the grade school multipurpose room last Saturday night pleased a nice family-type audience. Many children came with their parents and quite a group of young people came on their own. Dennis Cass was an excellent master of ceremonies and also contributed several vocal numbers to the program.

Each performer won applause for each performance in the varied program. Ella Mae Green, 9, Lexington vocalist began the show as a soloist and in a duet with Gloria Everhart, also 9. Gloria also performed with her sister Joy Lene, 10, and with their mother, Mrs. Floyd Everhart. Talented Mrs. Everhart accompanied several vocalists on the piano, sang with her young daughters, and presented several solo vocal numbers accompanying herself on her accordion.

Raymond Family Performs
The Arnold Raymond family offered two songs "If I Had a Hammer" and "Michael Row Your Boat." All nine Raymonds sang and swung — well really John Michael, 1 1/2 didn't really much, but he swung from the mike stand in front of his sisters Jennifer, 5, Susan, 8, Donna, a freshman, Diana, a sophomore, and brothers Jimmy, 10, Phillip, 12, and their parents Valerie and Arnold.

Seventh-Grade Girls
Others who performed included Mrs. Cass (Becky) who accompanied her husband as well as other vocalists, and an outstanding group of seventh-grade girls. These girls were Patti Lott, 12, who sang sweetly with or to her little doxie dog, Daisy; Patricia Saling, 12, who sang "Born Free" to her own piano accompaniment; Judy Ledbetter, 12, another sweet vocalist; and Jan Johnson, 13, who read her own poetry. Patricia Saling is a music student of Per Walthinsen. Jan Johnson began writing poems in the third of fourth grade. The poems she chose to read were "Friends", "The Miss" and "The Little Girl's Plea."

Refreshments Served
At the program's conclusion, MC Cass, invited the audience to gather at the refreshment table at the back of the room for coffee, punch, and cookies. Mrs. David Springer and Mrs. Edwin Struthers presiding at the table were assisted by some very nice junior high volunteers.

Another Talent Night?
Mrs. Verne Wilson and Dennis Cass say that they hope another talent night will be arranged for later this spring. It is thought that a second such program may be offered for the benefit of the Pioneer Memorial Hospital. Parents and friends who visited around the refreshment table remarked how pleasing the first program had been and that they surely hoped there will be another one like it.
