Strawberry Dessert Cake This sounds different and I plan to serve it at the Heppner Garden Club meeting Monday evening.

Add boiling water to gelatin, stirring to dissolve. Then add cold water. Pierce entire top surface of cooled cake with a fork. Slowly pour hot gelatin liquid over cake surface, evenly. Chill in refrigerator 4 or more hours. Invert cake on platter and remove mold. Garnish cake or individual servings with whipped cream or non-dairy topping and strawberries.

OSU SPEEDS UP LAMBING CYCLE

Sheep in Oregon are going to have to work harder if researchers have their way.

Normally seasonal breeders, sheep produce only one crop of lambs each year. But research shows that hormones can be used to influence breeding making it possible to alter the breeding cycle.

The Eastern Oregon Agricultural Experiment Station, Union, has successfully used hormone treatments to get ewes to produce four crops of lambs in three years by reducing the lambing cycle to 8 1/2 months. Attempts are underway to reduce this cycle to 7 1/2 months.

"The goal is to double Oregon's lamb production by having ewes produce two sets of lambs every year," said station superintendent and professor of animal science J.A.B. McArthur.

The lambing cycle is being shortened gradually, McArthur explains. A host of related management problems include weaning lambs at earlier ages than normal, developing feeding programs for these early weaned lambs, and studying the long-term effect of increased lambing on the ewe during her productive life span.

Benefit of a stepped-up lambing program would be increased efficiency of the ewe which must be fed and cared even though she isn't productive a large part of the year. Using hormones to re-
