

Ione Auction workers named

The Ione United Church of Christ Auction and Barbecue that was held June 3 required much planning and organizing. Many chairmen worked hard in their areas to assure the success of the picnic.

Paul Pettyjohn Sr. was merchandise chairman. He was responsible for making sure there were trucks to pick up and haul merchandise listing it getting someone to help the auctioneer and deliver the merchandise to the right people after the auction.

Dianna Kincaid was chairman of the antique sale, and Janet Lindstrom helped out. The antiques were displayed inside the garage hall in the morning before they were taken outside for the auction in the afternoon.

June Lindstrom was chairman for the Country Store. She worked hard to make sure that things were ready for the sales.

Cashiers for the Country Store were Helen Pettyjohn, chairman, Darrell Wilson, Betty Rietmann and Darrell James.

Others involved in the picnic plan were Milt Morgan, arrangements; Fred Nelson, pit chairman; Roy W. Lindstrom, meat cutter; Bob Rietmann, meat wrapper; Ken Smouse finances; Don Bristow, Anna Lee James, and Mary Arthur, tickets and publicity.

Helen McCabe was in charge of the barbecue. The Deaconess group from the church prepared the food. Dot Halvorsen was in charge of the dining room.

Prizes were given to the students from the church who sold the most tickets for the barbecue. For the girls, it was Margaret Kincaid, first; Lisa Meyers, second; and Tana Hams, third. Brian Rietmann was first for the boys; Doug Bristow, second; and Greg Rietmann, third. Three dollars was given for first place, two for second, and one dollar for third.

Garden Club visits refuge

Three members of the Ione Garden Club met with the Umatilla Garden Club June 1 and visited the Umatilla Wildlife Refuge. Those attending from Ione were Fred Martin, Mrs. Ernest Heliker and Mrs. Lee Pettyjohn.

Lee Hotchkiss was the leader of the tour. He showed different parts of the refuge and told many interesting things about it.

There are 29,370 acres in the refuge, both in Oregon and Washington, 1700 of which are underwater. The refuge was started over four years ago, and since that time things have been done to change and improve it.

Shrubs are being planted for the birds. Among them are American Plum, grape, honeysuckle, wild black cherry and mulberry. Black Locust and Carolina Poplar trees have also been planted.

Nesting places for water fowl have been built, using 50-gallon barrels that are put on a platform. The refuge is soon to use plastic barrels that are being made for this purpose.

A road is being built to go around the area so that visitors can see the entire refuge. A picnic area is being planned, and a nursery has been started so new trees can be grown to be moved later into the fields for the birds.

Mr. Hotchkiss told the group that many bird-watchers visit the area, usually in the morning since that is the best time to see the greatest number of species.

"It was really an interesting tour," said Mrs. Pettyjohn about the visit.

Mr. and Mrs. A.E. Stefani are having some remodeling done on their home on second street. Mr. Stefani's brother, John Stefani of Canby, is doing the work.

Roger Barnett of Juneau, Alaska arrived on Friday for a summer visit at the home of his uncles, the Jim and David Barnetts.
